Crawford Farmhand Killed By Lightning

HIT BY BOLT AS HE STANDS IN SHED DOORWAY

Companion Escapes Unhurt In Electrical Storm South Of Bucyrus.

2 OTHERS DIE IN STATE

Mercury Tumbles 30 Degrees Here After Severe Rain; More Showers Due.

Severe electrical storms which bombarded the northern half of the state late yesday as the aftermath of two days of sultry weather, took three lives, including that of a Crawford county farmhand.

Alexander Freeland, 30, who was employed on the Monnette farm five miles south of Bucyrus, was killed instantly at 5 p. m. yesterday when lightning struck him as he stood in the doorway of a shed in which he and a companion had sought shelter.

Companion Uninjured.

Freeland had been working in a field and ran to the shed when the storm struck. His companion was not hurt.

Freeland came to Crawford county five years ago from Michigan. He is survived by his wife, of Sulphur Springs, and a brother and sister in Detroit, Mich.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.

Father of 9 Killed.

In the western part of the state, R. L. Royer, 60, father of nine children, was killed by lightning as he worked in a field near Van Wert.

Fred Carney, 39, a WPA worker, was killed near Cleveland when lightning struck a tree under which he was standing. His companion, Frank Hlad, 25, another WPA worker, was knocked unconscious by the bolt.

While the Mansfield area escaped the full fury of yesterday's storms, a heavy rain struck the city about 5 p. m. and dropped the temperature 29 degrees within a few hours. Sharp flashes of lightning accompanied the shower, but no damage was reported in the county area. Rainfall here totaled 26 of an inch and brought the total for the week to nearly two inches.

The mercury reached 81 degrees yesterday afternoon in Mansfield, but dropped to 52 last night

The weather forecast carried the prediction of more showers tonight and Sunday, with a slight drop in temperature due Sunday.

MEET ON FUND SHIFT; RELIEF BILLS PILE UP

City And County Officials To Confer Next Week On Plan To Transfer $50,000.

QUESTION UP TO JUDGE

Money Would Be Taken From Sinking Fund; City Broke, Owes $20,000 Now.

Faced with unpaid food bills totaling $20,000, city and county officials will confer next week on the question of transfering $50,000 from the sinking fund to the poor relief fund.

Common Pleas Judge C H. Huston declined to comment on the transfer that has been left up to him by the state tax commission.

Confers With Trustees.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, following a meeting yesterday of city officials with Judge Huston on a petition seeking the transfer, which the city is preparing to file, said that the judge had agreed to meet with the sinking fund trustees at an early date to consider the matter.

Hunter explained that he had been informed by the sinking fund trustees several weeks ago that the transfer could be made without handicapping the fund in meeting its obligations.

Howard G. Miller, secretary of the sinking fund board said today, however, that he "would not want to make that same statement today."

Needs Further Study.

He said that since the time the trustees informed the city that the transfer could be made satisfactorily, some changes have occurred that would require a "little bookkeeping."

Miller said that the trustees only recently had agreed to purchase $21,000 in general bonds from the city for various improvements in the fire department and the city parks, "and was not so sure that they could safely authorize the transfer now."

Meanwhile City Auditor Paul Kelley said that mounting relief

TROOPS PATROL BORDER, EUROPE WAR FEAR SOARS

Czechoslovakian Order Calls Out Army Reserve as Fears of Disorders At Elections Grow; Henlein Believed to Be Confering With Hitler.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(INS)—France and Great Britain today were represented as "absolutely resolved" not to permit in Czechoslovakia a duplication of the German invasion of Austria.

(By United Press)

The Czech crisis shot Europe's war fever upward again today to the danger point.

Sudden and alarming developments threatened to wreck Great Britain's frantic campaign for peace and to force to a climax the German Nazi quarrel with Czechoslovakia.

The Czech cabinet called one year of the army reserve not as mobilization but to maintain order in Sunday's 11,000 municipal elections in which the dissatisfied German minority will participate.

Two farmers of the German minority were killed in incidents arising from hostility between Czechs and Nazis

German troops marched along the Czech frontier. But alarmed inquiries by British and Czech diplomats led to assurances that only normal movement from winter to summer quarters was under way.

Czech Nazis rejected the Prague government's new statutes designed to grant greater rights to minorities and bitterly complained that Germans were not given protection against Czech terrorism preparatory to the elections.

Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader in Czechoslovakia, mysteriously departed from Prague and speculation centered on whether he had gone to confer with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Recalls Austrian Seizure.

In almost every move and counter-move, the Czech crisis was developing along the pattern Hitler set up for the seizure of Austria. But there was one vital difference The Czechs will fight.

Out of the sudden burst of war-like maneuvers, there came two reassuring developments. Calmest voice from the crisis center was that of Czechoslovakia's greatest statesman, President Eduard Benes, telling the endangered post-war nation that "we must conduct ourselves in a manner that permits no terrorism. We must guard peace and keep steady nerves and a clear goal. We are not afraid."

From Berlin, too, foreign office sources deprecated any possibility of Germany either misunderstanding the Czechoslovakian call for reserves or of taking similar action.

The crisis threatened to test to the utmost the British policy of maintaining peace by realistic deals with the dictatorial Rome-

Puts Profit-Sharing Plan Before Industry

Vandenberg Warns Capitalism Must Be Placed on More Co-operative Basis; Urges Better Means For Labor to Get Split.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) proposed in an interview today the development of a profits sharing system between management and labor. He warned that capitalism to survive must establish itself on a more co-operative basis.

"There must be a sound opportunity for capital itself to earn legitimate profits," he said, "but there must also be a better means to permit the participation of labor in the final profits of its own production."

Vandenberg, a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 and a bitter critic of New Deal policies, recently obtained approval for a senate study of profit sharing systems.

"We have undertaken in the last two years to explore this field through the compulsory application of collective bargaining and its related instrumentalities," Vandenberg said.

Wants Plan Explored.

"The supplementary field of voluntary action through profit sharing has never heretofore been authentically explored at all. The two things are not necessarily in conflict. They each deal with the creation of satisfactory human relationships and the pursuit of equitable peace in commerce and industry.

"The country is entirely too big and too complex to be thus regimented," he continued. "The sole primary purpose is to make available an authentic record and recommendation for the voluntary guidance of American business.

"The secondary purpose is to inquire how the government can appropriately encourage voluntary action by employers in this field of capitalistic co-operation.

"It might be done by tax exemptions and compensatory tax rewards in connection with such portions of commercial income as are diverted to employe dividends. If such a course should prove practical, the loss of immediate tax revenue would be offset one hundred fold by the profound benefits which always will flow from peace and happiness in our relationships between capital and labor."

SLAYS CHILDREN

Jobless Father Uses Hammer, Sets Fire To House.

PATERSON, N. J.—(INS)—A jobless father, crazed by the thought of destitution, today murdered his two children with a hammer and then set fire to his tenement home to cover the crime.

Found wandering dazedly through the smoke-filled home, Alfred Schwarzenbach, readily admitted the slayings to police.

"I couldn't find a job and everything looked hopeless," he said. "I killed the babies."

The dead children are Alberta, 3, and Lorraine, who would have been one year old tomorrow.

PILOTS BLAMED IN AIR MISHAP

'Faulty Judgment' Held Cause of Plane Deaths of Nine.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A coroner's jury described today as "accidental and due to faulty judgment on the part of both pilot and co-pilot" the cause of the crash of an $80,000 transport plane in the Saugus Hills, Monday, which killed nine persons.

"We recommend," the jury wrote, "that all pilots flying planes carrying passengers be instructed by proper authorities and required to fly at 1,000-feet elevations above the highest mountain points on the route being flown when leaving or entering all airports in this area."

Testimony was given that a likely reason for the ship flying close to the ground was the encountering of unexpected fog.

Seek to Halt Inspection Of Personal Tax Records

Defendants In 2 of 4 Suits Ask Court to Set Aside Order Granting Taxpayer Right to Examine Books.

Defendants in two of four personal tax suits filed a week ago in common pleas court sought today to prevent counsel for the plaintiff from examining county records covering payments of taxes on the four estates involved in the actions.

Filed by Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, as a taxpayer, the suits ask for an accounting of personal taxes paid between 1926 and 1930 on the property of J A Rigby and Harry S. Black and the estates of the late Frank B. Black and Burton Preston.

Granted 5 Days Ago.

Authority to inspect county tax records was granted counsel for Hallabrin five days ago by Common Pleas Judge C H Huston.

In motions on file today, Donald S Black representing the estate of his father, the late Frank B. Black, and Harry S. Black seek to have the court order authorizing inspection set aside on the grounds that tax records are confidential and not open for public inspection They also contend that the hearing on the application for authority to check the records was held without their knowledge.

Filed for Hallabrin by Attys. Joseph A Bayer of Mansfield and Hart, McHenry and Jones of Canton, the suits charge that personal tax returns on the four properties were "incomplete" for the four-year period and that two of the defendants obtained immunity from certain taxes under a law which later was ruled unconstitutional.

Motions seeking to halt examination of the tax books were filed by Atty. Weldon and Huston, representing the Black families.

Czech Call For Troops Shock To Europe, Eyes Turn on Hitler

(By United Press)

LONDON—Czechoslovakia called to the colors today one year's contingent of its army reserve, and sent a thrill of anxiety and alarm to every corner of Europe.

The Czechoslovak government's action hit Europe like an electric shock It came at a time when fears that Adolf Hitler, the key man of Europe, might be preparing to exert in Czechoslovakia the "protective interest" he asserts in Germans outside Germany's frontiers, already had sent shivers of apprehension through European foreign offices

Diplomatic tension was at its highest point since Hitler's seizure of Austria There was serious concern in the British and French foreign offices

The Czechoslovak municipal elections in 11,000 towns, which start tomorrow and which have stirred widespread clashes between Czechs and "Sudeten" minority Germans, suddenly brought the situation to a point approaching that of crisis.

Diplomats, with or without reason, feared that Hitler might decide to take the opportunity, with France and Italy embroiled over intervention in the Spanish civil

Alarmed British Diplomats See Threat of New Nazi Coup

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax hurriedly returned to the foreign office today to take the helm of British foreign policy personally in the face of increasingly dangerous German-Czech incidents.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain kept in close touch with the dangerous situation complicated by the frontier killing of two Germans by Czech guards, the calling up of Czech army reserves and reports sandbag barricades had been thrown up on Czech roads between Eger and Pilsen.

Berlin dispatches declared the British ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, called on the German foreign office for confirmation of previous assurances there were no abnormal German troop movements near the Czech frontier.

British officials displayed concern over the Sudeten German minority's refusal to negotiate with the Czech government unless prior guarantees were received. This, Britons felt, would be putting the cart before the horse since such guarantees then could not come into the negotiations.

An authoritative Czech source in London said it was believed Adolf Hitler, though ambitious to absorb Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Germans, did not plan a military coup against his eastern neighbor this week-end.

"But you can't be sure of anything these days," the source declared, "and there have been precedents."

Parks Group Sets Stage For Second July 4th Celebration

Mansfield will have its second big Fourth of July celebration in recent years when the Public Parks association, sponsors an all-day program at the Fairground, culminating in a fireworks display.

The festivities are expected to surpass even last year's celebration when a crowd estimated at more than 35,000, scattered from Trimble road on the west to Lincoln Heights on the east, witnessed the spectacular fireworks.

Sponsored by the Public Parks association, the celebration will be made possible through cash contributions from merchants and individuals, Ray W Vaughn, president of the association, said.

"The purpose of the celebration, aside from giving Mansfield people a worthwhile fireworks display, is to encourage Mansfielders to remain in the city over the holiday and off the highways on a day when the nation's traffic fatalities usually reach the highest point of the year," Vaughn said.

Plans have been made for a continuous program from 1 to 10 p. m. The High school, Prospect school and Westinghouse bands will play, and entertainment will be given by the playground children, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, and by nationality groups of the city.

Harness races and amateur boxing will be interspersed in the entertainment program in the afternoon A concert by the Westing-

Sheep-Raiding 'Wolf' Turns Out To Be Dog — It's Killed

Raids on sheep and goat flocks in Richland and Ashland counties by a "wolf" were believed ended today with the shooting of a huge mongrel dog at the edge of Knox county.

The animal, described as a wolf by a Worthington township farmer who saw it run from his farm after killing three goats, was shot yesterday by a farmer just across the Knox county line.

Dog Warden William Miller of Richland county, who had investigated the "wolf" reports, said he was convinced that the dog killed yesterday was the hunted marauder.

The animal had killed a number of sheep, lambs and goats in Worthington township and in southwestern Ashland county during the past week, and in most cases had eaten off the heads of its victims, farmers said

Donald McKown, son of a Worthington township farmer, told officers he had seen the animal run from his father's farm and described it as a "timber wolf that ran like a grey streak."

The dog resembled a wolf and could easily have been mistaken for one from a distance, Dog Warden Miller said.

The loss of three goats owned by Charles McKown, near White Hall, will not be paid by the county, commissioners said, since McKown contends the goats were killed by a wolf. The county pays only for stock killed by dogs.

HOBBY COLLECTIONS RANGE FROM BUTTONS TO GUNS IN 'Y' SHOW

Whether your hobby is collecting buttons or beetles, maps or mops, you'll have an opportunity to display your collections when the Y. M. C. A. hobby and handicraft show gets under way at 1 p. m. Sunday in the 'Y' gymnasium.

Mansfield hobbists run a wide range, and there's scarcely an item of interest that can't be found in some one's collection. Remember those campaign buttons bearing pictures of political candidates? You'll find some of them in the collection of celluloid buttons which is one hobbist's idea of something to do in leisure moments.

Gun fanciers will find plenty to intrigue their interest in the collection of old and fancy firearms. And there will be quaint dolls from foreign lands, and glass slippers and hats, coins and stamps, Indian relics, china, autographs of movie stars and world celebrities (you'd be surprised at the famous autographs in possession of Mansfield collectors) and wood carvings and art. A particularly interesting collection will be H. F. Shover's envelopes with pictures that match the postal cancellation.

The hobby show should provide a field day for Mansfield's enthusiastic amateur photographers.

The show is being staged at the Y. M. C. A., with the co-operation of the Junior Association of Commerce, and is open to anyone in the county. Exhibits however, must be made up of items that belong to the individual exhibiting them.

Certificates will be awarded in recognition of first, second and third best exhibits in various classifications.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

By CALVIN A. BYERS

LATE this afternoon I walked back through the large 20 acre field we intend to plow for soy beans. I marked the first land out by placing stakes in the ground at intervals which made a straight line parallel with the western border. Last year it was a lovely waving wheat field. Now the stubbles, burdened by the winters rain and snow lie flat upon the surface. Great bunches of red clover stand, unevenly about the entire field. I marveled at its fine dark greenness waving in the wind.

I went back across the northern end where large trees had grown along the hedge. My first impulse was to cut them down and leave the entire field an easier place for farming. But these half grown forest trees, so young and green, so full of life and beauty, would make a splendid shelter for our wild folk, would hold the snow drifts here a little longer in the spring, would stand a windbreak for the field beyond. No—I shall not touch a single branch.

Along the southern side of this hedge, among the heavy stalks of clover, I saw a ground sparrow fly from the eastern side of one tall bunch, as through an open door she limped and drawled with feathered wing upon the ground, until I almost believe she was crippled but when I walked closer she flew farther away, chirping loudly.

I returned to the bunch of clover stems, parted carefully the heavy top and looked straight down upon four fuzzy half-naked babies who were stretching their little necks as high as possible. Their mouths were wide open, hoping to receive a fresh portion of some well divided worm. I could see well down the throats. I thought, "what a task that sparrow mother has, to fill those aching voids with food many times a day."

I noticed the nest was built well above the ground, so water would not easily drown the youngsters.

Although this happy home is directly in the line of plowing, I have already placed a stake in the ground, close to the precious stalks of clover, and tied my old white handkerchief securely to the top. It is a flag of truce. No harm shall come to this homey little boyer.

war, with Italian-British relations cooled in consequence, to impose his will upon Czechoslovakia, using the electoral disturbances as an excuse.

A series of incidents which brought German-Czechoslovak relations to a head created an atmosphere exactly reminiscent of that which preceded the exertion of Germany's protective interest in German Austria.

They included:

German troop movements on the Czechoslovak frontier.

The Sudeten German minority party's abrupt refusal to negotiate with the Czechoslovak government regarding the proposed minorities statute "so long as terrorism continues."

The almost unprecedently bitter campaign in the German press against the Czechoslovaks.

Premier Hodza's statement yesterday that "we shall be prepared to defend ourselves if need arises."

The German press charges that the Czechoslovak government was directly responsible for attacks upon the Sudeten Germans.

The assertion in the newspaper national Zeitung of Essen personal organ of Field Marshal Hermann Goering Hitler's right hand man, that "the entire German nation considers developments in Czechoslovak intolerable and an attack on the Reich.

Recent rumors of troop movements by Poland on the Czechoslovak frontier.

Apprehension in Great Britain already had been emphasized by the inquiry of Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, to the German foreign office regarding troop movements on the Czechoslovak frontier.

The jurors, acting on the insistance of Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman, stated in their report that they were opposed to all forms of gambling devices in any public place in the county, and strongly urged all law enforcement officials to consider their recommendation as being permanent.

The jurors examined 12 witnesses and ignored three cases, one against Gordon Hunt of Mifflin, who had been charged with assault on his brother.

Frank Willard, 24, who was arrested in Loudonville May 5 after a gun battle with three law enforcement officials, was indicted on three counts, including shooting with intent to kill, carrying concealed weapons and driving a car without the owner's permission.

Legion Opens Home Season At Fairground Park Sunday

Sport Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE
(UP Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK — Professor Bill McCarney, recently returned from abroad, held one of his delightful social sessions yesterday, and charged his listeners, both by tales from the continent and by picking up the check.

McCarney, who has been looking at fights and fighters since 1888, took Steve Dudas to Hamburg for his fight with Max Schmeling. You have the word of the professor that Schmeling, who butchered Dudas for six rounds, is in the best shape of his life and will knock out Joe Louis, when they meet in June, in six rounds or less. McCarney knows Schmeling and was his co-manager from 1928 to 1933.

Someone asked McCarney if he thought Schmeling would ever defend his title if he licked Louis in June. McCarney answered:

"Yes, but not for the reason you would think. He won't defend it for money, but because it will give him another shot at Max Baer, and that's the fellow the German wants to beat. The one thing that keeps Schmeling from being a hundred per cent hero in Germany is the fact that Baer knocked him out. Neither the officials nor the German fans have forgiven him for losing to Baer—a fellow they believe is Jewish. Of course, Baer isn't Jewish at all."

This last remark questioned and it was pointed out that much of the ballyhoo before the Schmeling-Baer fight was devoted to Baer's Jewish blood.

"I know that," McCarney chuckled. "You see, I was the one who thought that up. Tickets weren't selling any too well when Baer got in town, so I suggested that we spruce it up a bit by concocting the German-Jewish angle Too, it is New York's great Jewish population that provides the bulk of the fight crowd. It worked mighty fine—so fine that Germany still is demanding that Schmeling avenge himself on his "non aryan" conquerer."

Asked why he was so positive Schmeling would whip Louis, McCarney said:

"Brains The German has got it upstairs, and plenty. He is twice as smart as any fighter I ever knew, and I have known 'em all since John L's time."

Chicago to Stay In Big Ten

By JOHN H. COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Chicago will remain in the Big Ten-toughest collegiate football conference in the country—and it intends to recoup its defunct gridiron fortunes.

The speaker: Clark Shaughnessy, lanky Maroon coach, and he explained it this way. "We're down at the bottom of the heap now But we're going to lay off some of the tough teams for a while and schedule more schools of our calibre

"Our material is very limited, but we have hopes things will turn for the better and we'll be up there with the rest of them in a few years. "All this about our leaving the conference is just talk."

Signs Three Foes.

Shaughnessy who attended a tumultuous 1941 schedule-drafting meeting of Big Ten coaches and athletic directors here yesterday restricted his card for that year to three Big Ten games—Illinois, Ohio State and Michigan, traditional rivals

Chicago in the next two years must play four major games due to prior schedule arrangements

Northwestern continued its "suicide" schedule In 1941 it will meet Wisconsin, Michigan Ohio Minnesota, Indiana Notre Dame and Illinois in a row Here's the Ohio State 1941 conference schedule Oct 25—Northwestern at Ohio; Nov 1—Ohio at Chicago Nov 8—Wisconsin at Ohio Nov 15—Illinois at Ohio

Indians Down Washington to Retain Lead

Allen Allows 10 Hits, But Tightens In Pinches.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — When the Cleveland Indians were in the final stages of a disastrous swing through the East, Manager Oscar Vitt benched the veteran Lyn Lary and sent Rookie Jimmy Webb to shortstop.

Lary had failed to hit and his poor throwing and erratic defensive work had cost the Tribe several games. Webb failed to make good and in desperation, Vitt returned Lary to the starting lineup.

Apparently a few days on the bench was all the veteran infielder needed to steady himself. Since coming back Lary has fielded in brilliant style and came through with timely hits.

Lary garnered two hits yesterday as the Indians defeated Washington 6 to 3 to hang onto their American league lead. He handled six chances in the field with ease

Johnny Allen was in the box for Cleveland and although in trouble frequently he pitched smartly to win his fourth victory of the season. Allen was nicked for 10 hits, but hurled effectively in the pinches.

Emil Leonard, the knuckle ball artist who shutout the Indians in a 13-inning game during the eastern swing, experienced little success yesterday. Cleveland shelled him from the hill with a five run splurge in the second inning.

Elon Hogsett followed him to the mound and gave up only one more run, that in the sixth inning on a circuit drive by Earl Averill.

In an effort to sweep the series with Washington, the veteran southpaw, Earl Whitehill, was to pitch for Cleveland today. Kendall Chase was expected to oppose him.

Injury Hurts Title Chances

Linta May Not Compete Today In Fremont.

Their championship chances minimized by the injury suffered by the spectacular John Linta, pole vault and low hurdle expert, the Mansfield high school track and field squad participated in the district meet in Fremont today

Mansfield's chances to threaten the title hopes of Sandusky, defending champion, and Fremont were lessened this week when Linta injured his heel in a workout

Linta was conceded victories in his specialties before the injury. It was doubtful whether he would be able to compete today but accompanied the squad Coach Harry Mehock was to determine whether to permit Linta to compete after a warm-up on arrival there.

CHURCH LEAGUE CLUBS SEEK SECOND VICTORIES

The undefeated First Lutherans and St John's Evangelicals will be seeking their second straight Y M C A Church Class A softball league victories of the season Monday in the only games on the program

The Lutheran club faces St Mark's Lutheran at Johns park, while St Johns tackles the United Brethren at Prospect park The Park Avenue Baptist-South Main Evangelical tilt scheduled at Liberty park has been postponed

Meets Former Cleveland Pitcher's Logan Outfit In League Tussle.

MANSFIELD'S representatives in the Central Ohio semi-pro league will display their talents at the Fairground for the first time this season when they engage Logan at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

The Mansfield American Legion team opened its season two weeks ago when it bowed to the veteran Federal Glass club of Columbus, and it was rained out last Sunday at Coshocton.

Despite the fact that the Legionnaires have made only one appearance, Manager Dewey Durant said today that it is showing improved form in practice drills.

Meet Contender.

In Logan the Durantmen meet one of the teams which is expected to be a serious contender for the league championship.

Walter Miller

Logan is piloted by Walter Miller, former Cleveland Indian southpaw, and the former big leaguer plans to take his turn on the mound.

Whether Miller will be on the mound Sunday was not certain today, however.

Durant also was uncertain as to his pitching choice, but said that all of his hurlers are ready to go to work.

Howard Patterson, young right hander, and Aid Geiger hurled at Columbus, the former turning in a splendid performance until he run into trouble in the seventh. He lost the decision by a 2 to 0 score because his teammates were unable to produce any tallies.

Geiger did a fine turn of relief pitching in this game, and will be ready again Sunday to step to the mound if he does not start.

As Patterson and Geiger saw service in the only game played to date, Lefty Deeds may get the nod Sunday.

Mansfield fans Sunday will see quite a few products of the home sandlots in action with the Legion club Sunday.

Mohican Graduates.

In addition to Patterson, the young members of the club include Freddy Lewis, Ed Willard and Dick Donnan, who performed with Howard Straub's city championship Mohican Chevrolet team last year.

Bob Selsby and Lloyd Beal, also of Mansfield, and Dale Leedy, of Belleville, are other recruits who will probably see service Sunday.

The veterans of the team are Tommy Moxley, Charley Baker, Red Harrer, Orv Kibler, Geiger, Deeds and Durant.

Open Trials For Classic

INDIANAPOLIS — (INS) — Competing in the first qualifying trials for America's most breath-taking speed classic, some of the nation's most daring drivers were to begin setting the stage here today for the 26th annual 500-mile Memorial day automobile race

About 13 out of the field of 49 entered in the race were expected to take part in today's tests around the two and one-half mile brick oval of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Earlier it had seemed that between 15 and 20 drivers would be ready for the qualifying runs today, but several became dissatisfied with the performances of their cars in runs during the week and planned to delay their qualifying attempts

Must Average 110.

To qualify for the "big race," drivers must average better than 110 miles an hour for ten laps around the track Sixteen of the entrants will be eliminated, for only 33 can compete on Memorial day.

The trials were expected to produce some of the maddest driving ever seen on the speedway as the veteran pilots shot for two prizes —qualifications in the race itself, and the coveted pole position. The pole goes to the driver who attains the highest speed in the trials

A consensus of speedway experts indicated an average speed of at least 127 M P H would be needed to win the sought-after "pole." Last year "Wild Bill" Cummings of Indianapolis earned the position with a speed of 123 miles

The three most likely contenders for the pole were Kelly Petillo of Los Angeles, 1935 classic winner Rex Mays of Glendale, Cal., and Cummings. Cummings, also a former winner, was at the wheel of a Boyle Valve Special Petillo drove his Speedway Special, and Mays piloted an Italian Alfa-Romeo

In his first general press interview since he was let go by the New York Yankees, Tony Lazzeri is pictured in the uniform of the Chicago Cubs, his new team. Refusing to become involved in a National league-American league controversy, Lazzeri said change of uniforms gave him a new lease on life, declared he

Five Home Games.

The card as announced today by Earl A. Mann, faculty manager of athletes, include five home games and four away, the season opening Saturday, Sept. 17.

While the caliber of all of the schools the Tygers will engage next fall is questionable at this writing, the schedule stacks up as one of the strongest ever tackeled by a Mansfield high eleven.

In addition to Hammond, Coach Russ Murphy's gridmen will open the series with Canton McKinley, a perennial power in Ohio football circles, and Columbus East.

Mansfield will continue rivalries with Massillon, Akron West, Sandusky, Akron Kenmore, Shelby and Ashland.

The Tygers' opening foe will again be Akron West, Rubber City champion for the last three years. Massillon state champion, comes here the next Saturday to avenge the only blot smeared on its record last season by an Ohio school.

Hammond and Columbus East will be met at Stadium field on the following Saturdays before the Tygers make their first out-of-town appearance.

Finish On Road.

Mansfield plays four of its last five opponents on foreign soil, the first being at Sandusky, Oct. 15. The Men of Murphy go to Shelby, Oct. 22, and complete the home end of their schedule the next week-end with Akron Kenmore.

Mansfield goes to Ashland, Nov. 5, and closes the difficult schedule in Canton, Nov. 12. The complete schedule follows.

Sept. 17—Akron West, here. Sept 24 Massillon, here, Oct 1, Hammond, Ind., here, Oct. 8, Columbus East, here Oct. 15, Sandusky, there, Oct. 22, Shelby, there. Oct. 29 Akron Kenmore, here. Nov. 5, Ashland, there, Nov. 12, Canton McKinley, there.

Releases 16-Game Court Schedule.

FACULTY Manager Mann also released the 1938-39 basketball card today.

It includes 16 games, 10 at home and six away, and opens Dec. 2, at Shelby.

New Opponents.

New opponents on the court schedule are Hamilton, Cleveland West, Massillon, New Philadelphia, Bellevue and Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent. All of the contracts signed for next season call for single games except those with Cleveland West, Canton McKinley, Shelby and Ashland.

A number of the foes on next winter's schedule ranked with the outstanding clubs in Ohio last season. New Philadelphia, for instance, was runner-up in the state tournament.

Hamilton, 1937 champion, and Canton McKinley are other schools which competed in the state finals last year along with Mansfield. Massillon was rated as the strongest team in the state last winter, but was upset in the finals of the district tournament.

Newark Dropped.

Mann stated today that negotiations for a series with Newark, 1838 Ohio champion, have been discontinued. The reason for the failure to reach an agreement was not disclosed. The schedule follows:

Dec. 2, Shelby, there, Dec. 9, Cleveland West, there, Dec 16, Hamilton, here, Dec 21 Canton McKinley, there, Dec. 27, Erie, Pa Strong Vincent here, Jan 7, Cleveland West, here, Jan. 10, Ashland, here, Jan. 20 New Philadelphia there, Jan. 24, Bellevue, here, Jan. 28, Sandusky here, Feb. 3, Akron West, here, Feb. 8, Ashland, there: Feb. 10, Willard, here: Feb 18, Shelby, here, Feb. 21, Massillon there: Feb. 24, Canton McKinley, here.

Other clubs entered today include Marion, Fostoria, Ashland, Lima South, Lima Central and Bucyrus.

Goldsmith Clothiers Face Tougher Task

Inaugurate News-Journal Class A Golf League Season at Possum Run Monday.

By CHARLES MARTIN

GOLDSMITH CLOTHIERS open a drive for their second straight News-Journal Class A golf league championship in inaugural matches at 5:15 p. m. Monday at Possum Run.

The Clothiers, who came through with a last-round rally to grab the title last season, are expected to face even tougher opposition in the well-balanced league.

The club will enter the title race this year without the services of any of the members who led it under the wire through the successful season. Carl Kushin, Pete Thoma, Harry Schlegel and Ted Etzel were the members of the championship team, but two of the players will perform with other outfits this year, while the others are not signed up. This season the team will have Pete Zeides, Steve Mihalic, Frank Vild and Red Barrett.

Schlegel will play with the Richland Printers and Thoma will fill the No. 2 position on the Matthes Clothier team.

Three New Teams.

Three new foursomes make their debut Monday. They are the Matthes Clothiers, Big Three Malt company and DeLuxe Cabs.

Outstanding among the clubs expected to threaten the Goldsmith club's chances of repeating are the Printers, Big Three Malt and Matthes Clothiers.

The Printers will have Pete Linster, former Possum Run manager, Schlegel, John Hallabrin, a member of the Mansfield high golf team, and Oscar Frantz.

On the Big Three Malt roster are Frank Cipris, Paul Jesson, Clair Bell and Fred Loykovich. The Matthes Clothiers will be represented by Thornton Lake, Pete Thoma, Tony Schadek and V. H. Oberlander.

Title Threats.

The Yuncker Sports are likely to develop into a serious title contender with a lineup including Nick Linster, Kleshinski, Dr. D. M. Leuthner and Joe Pilot. Carrying the DeLuxe Cab colors are Vin Malaska, Deley, Chuck Snyder and Noel Morgan.

Watson Leads Michigan In Big 10 Meet

Breaks Shot Put Record as He Wins 3 Events.

By RUSSELL FULLER

COLUMBUS, O.—The Ohio Stadium made immortal by the flying feet of Jesse Owens bowed in tribute to another of his race today as dusky Bill Watson, Michigan's brilliant track star, led his teammates into the finals of the 38th Annual Western Conference track championships.

A broad shouldered husky whose sturdy right arm broke the Western conference shotput record yesterday and who led the qualifiers in the discus and broad jump as well, Watson bid fair to repeat his triple winning performance of 1937.

Michigan Leads In Qualifiers.

Watson's flashy performances in the preliminaries stood far above any exhibitions turned in by the remaining competitors and enabled the Wolverines to lead in the number of qualifiers, 11 men to be exact

But along with Watson there came another to stand on the brink of fame. None other than Bob Lewis of Ohio State who swept the field in qualifying attempts for the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Chunky Bob reeled off the 100 in 9.6 and the 220 in 21.7 and only sudden reversals of form from his opponents today can prevent him from cleaning up in the dashes.

However, Watson's shotput heave of 52 feet, 11½ inches was the outstanding performance of the preliminaries and under pressure he will probably heave the heavy sphere further today.

Ohio State Disappointing.

Ohio State's men, other than Lewis, were somewhat of a disappointment, only six others landing in qualifying positions. Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana sent eight stars into the finals.

Purdue and Chicago landed five in the coveted final posts and Minnesota gained three places. Northwestern trailed badly with only one.

Ohio's Harley Howells stepped lively in the second heat of the 440-yard run to tie the Western conference record of 47.8 held jointly by Ivan Fuqua, Indiana, and George Halcrow, Chicago.

Halcrow, incidentally, while he won the third heat easily, turned in a comparatively poor time of 48.7. He is defending titlist.

Giants' Domination of Senior Loop Fading

NEW YORK —(UP)— The New York Giants' dream of dominating the National league seems to be fading Beaten for the third straight time yesterday, the Giants who a scant week ago had a record of 18 triumphs in 21 games, have cracked wide open. They've lost four out of their last five games, and their big lead has been chopped to 3½ games.

But worse than that, Terry has seen only one Giant base-runner reach third in the last two games. One man got there yesterday as Cincinnati blanked New York, 4-0. The day before, against the Cubs, the Giants got only one man to second. In the last 22 innings they haven't scored a run, and in the last three games 28 innings of play they've made only 14 hits and two runs, both homers

The Chicago Cubs slashed out 22 hits to beat the Phillies 16-7, and move closer to the Giants.

Brooklyn triumphed over Pittsburgh, 7-5. Van Mungo won his second game with a bit of relief help from Forest Pressnell

The leading Cleveland Indians of the American league, slugged Emil Leonard off the mound in the second inning and beat Washington 6 to 3.

The Boston Red Sox kept pace with the Indians by hammering out a 16-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Lefty Grove held the Browns to eight hits to win his seventh straight game

Rudy York's error a liner to left field and three eighth inning doubles by Rookies Seibert, Chapman and Lodigiani spoiled Schoolboy Rowe's attempted comeback as the Athletics won from Detroit, 5-2. Until York dropped Ambler's liner, Rowe had pitched masterfully, allowing only four hits and one run.

The other two games were postponed because of rain.

Yesterday's Hero—'Lefty' Grove, 38-year-old Red Sox southpaw, who limited the Browns to eight hits in hanging up his seventh straight victory.

Couple Wants To Marry But Can't

By VIRGINIA LEE

A girl writes me that she and her boy friend, who have known each other for six years, want to become engaged, as they are very much in love with each other. However, the boy is making a small salary, and sees no hope of better prospects at present, so he tells her she had better forget him.

"He is very firmly set on my not working after our marriage," she writes. "Would you advise me as to whether or not we should get engaged or what?"

So many boys and girls are in the same fix you are, my dear. It seems to me if you love each other and have strong wills the best thing is to be engaged, or at least to go together, working and hoping for better times. You can encourage each other, and as two heads are said to be better than one, you can put your two heads together and try to figure out ways and means of bettering yourselves.

I know young couples who have done this and have finally been able to marry. It would have been pretty discouraging going for each alone, but together they worked it out, keeping each other cheered up until times were better. I hope you will do this and that your lean times will soon be over and you can marry.

* * *

JOSEPHINE: I am afraid there is nothing you can do. The boy went with you awhile, evidently decided you did not satisfy him as a companion for all time, and broke off the friendship. That is his privilege. If he cared to he could come to see you again, you know. As he does not, he evidently does not care enough.

This is plain speaking, but why fool yourself? Better try to forget about him.

* * *

UNDECIDED AND WORRIED is a boy and his girl friend says she loves him, but she always has another boy friend, too, and she seems to be in a perpetual state of trying to see which boy she likes better.

Undecided and Worried won out the first time she went through this undecided period. But now she is going with another boy, and U. and W. doesn't know whether he should wait for her to decide again if he is the one she likes best, or should he leave her, "never to see her again"? He feels "terribly" when he sees her out with this other boy, he writes, and he sees her quite frequently, as she divides her time between them.

I would hardly think such a little flirt was worth waiting for, to tell you the truth, my boy. She keeps you in a constant state of unhappiness. I doubt very much if she is worth your agony of mind. Few girls would be. I would think there was a streak of cruelty in her nature, and considerable selfishness, too.

Why don't you find another girl and go with her and see if you can't forget this first one? It would be more sensible, I think provided it could be done.

"Bread is the staff of life," says the Bible, and isn't it true, in spite of reduction diets and whatnot? I recently read a physician's article in which he gave very excellent reasons why bread is a good food for everyone. This real Bohemian rye bread recipe is given by Mrs. F. E. Jankovsky, and I hope it is one you have been looking for for some time.

Today's Recipes.

Real Bohemian Rye Bread—Three cups warm water, two tablespoons salt, one-half yeast cake, six cups rye flour, one tablespoon or more caraway seed, two cups white flour. Add salt to warm water, crumble in yeast, add half rye flour and let rise until light and bubbly, then add rest of rye flour, the white flour and the seeds. Knead well and let rise until double in bulk. Shape into round loaf and place in round pan, ten inches across and four inches deep. Let rise to top of pan and bake in 400-degree oven ten minutes. Reduce to 300 degrees and bake 40 minutes more. Remove from pan and brush top with water or shortening. If a blended rye flour is used, omit white flour and add more rye.

Strawberry Cream Tarts—Bake tart shells, using rich pastry and baking it over the backs of tart muffin pans. Make a cream pie filling. When shells and filling are cool, put filling into shells and arrange perfect, fresh strawberries over the top. Put a dash of whipped cream on the berries when serving.

Simplified Crepes Suzettes.

One cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, one cup milk, orange peel. Mix flour and salt, break in two eggs and mix thoroughly. Then add milk, stirring slowly. Add a few gratings of orange peel and pour enough into a small frying pan to make a very thin cake. Brown nicely on each side, put a roll of orange marmalade down center of each cake and roll tightly.

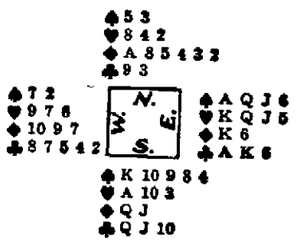
LEARN THEIR WAYS

IT PAYS TO KNOW the ways of your opponents. In many a case you can count on them to manifest a definite reaction to certain stimuli—to borrow a term from the medical profession. Bearing those tendencies in mind, we can adopt measures to steer their courses as we desire, or let them proceed in directions they have indicated they will follow.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

When South bid one spade on this deal, followed by his partner's two diamonds, East knew there would be more bidding whether he took part or not. The opponents were using the convention which prescribes that the naming of a new suit forces at least one more bid out of the partner. So East decided to pass and hope for a later chance to make a good business double.

South's rebid was two spades, over which North bid three diamonds. Here is where some more of East's information regarding Mr. South came in handy. He knew South considered himself a better player than his partner and would not let North play a hand if he could help it. East was not particularly anxious to play against diamonds, but reckoned that a double of that bid would scare South into either another spade rebid or a call of the two unbid suits, possibly even no trump.

South followed the form chart and took out East's double of three diamonds into three spades. This East of course doubled, and scored a nice juicy set on a deal where no game was remotely in sight for his side.

Summer Styles Aid Thin Girls

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

This summer's styles are particularly flattering for you if you happen to be thin. The fad for mixed and vivid colors is just your meat. So don't worry if you haven't succeeded in putting on those extra pounds that you have been yearning for. Fashions have truly been kind. Even when you are going on the beach you can wear smart beach robes, slacks and cute jackets to hide those angles.

There are a few little rules, however, that are very good to bear in mind. They will do much to make you look exceedingly smart and will also minimize your extreme thinness. You'll make many a chubby girl friend green with envy.

If you are tall, don't stoop to try to look shorter. It will only make you look awkward. Stand straight and wear bright colors. Wide belts, big sleeves, wide dramatic collars and flaring skirts will be most becoming to you.

Things to avoid are flowing, bulky dresses and also very tight dresses or coats. The former will make you look skinny and draped, the latter will make you appear thin as a bean pole. But if you'll remember to hold up your shoulders and have a curve at the bust, by all means go in for a fitted waistline.

Broad Shoulders Stylish.

You should have, or appear to have, broad shoulders. Again the styles are on your side—so you can go to extremes with the wide-topped sleeves, puffed shoulder sleeves and the juttingly cut shoulders. In your suits, jackets and coats you can go in for padded shoulders, and you can improve your figure by wearing snug belts at your natural waistline. They will make your waist look slim and your hips and bust will look fuller, so you will appear to have flattering curves. If you are tall, your belt can be of a contrasting color, but if you are short, wear a belt of the same color. The contrasting belt will cut you off in the middle and make you look even shorter.

Dirndls are charming on slender girls and so are pleats and wide skirts. But don't forget to keep your skirts flat over your stomach. That is an unbreakable rule for all women. And since you have no fat tummies to hide, you should make the most of it.

Don't try to hide a bony neck with many draperies. Emphasize your neckline with sharp high lines across the front, or by a neckline that fits the base of your throat, set off with a big ornament or flower. Jewelry around the neck makes it look larger, and a boat-shaped neckline will make your neck look wider.

Wear reds, brilliant blues, white, and bright bold prints. Go in for daring smart clothes that will bring out your personality, and we will be willing to bet you'll forget you were ever skinny. You'll be so pleased at being chic.

All ingredients used in making pastry should be cold. The colder the pastry is when put into the oven, the flakier it will be when baked.

If silverware which is to be stored for some time is packed in white flour it will not tarnish.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

With the expression of haughty disapproval I knew so well, my mother-in-law looked fixedly at me when I told her the instructions I had given Katie concerning telegrams for me.

"It is your own affair, of course," she said frigidly, "but I cannot refrain from saying that if I were in your place, I never would dream of reposing such confidence in a person of limited mentality and erratic impulses such as are Katie's."

She drew a deep breath after that sentence, and I mentally commented that she must need it.

"It is most considerate of you, of course, to instruct her that I am not to be disturbed while I am sleeping, but—a telegram is an emergency. You should have instructed her to waken me at once. I presume you have told her to waken me if the house were on fire, or in any similar grave emergency?"

By a tremendous effort of will power, I kept my lips from twitching as I faced her intent, questioning look.

"Oh! of course, Mother," I replied gravely. "I have told her repeatedly to waken you in any real emergency and ask you what to do."

Madge Relieved.

Her voice was much less severe when she answered, and I drew a quick breath of relief. Evidently I had "bent the pregnant hinges of the knee" sufficiently, and victory was within my grasp.

"You should have included telegrams and telephones," she commented, then went an swiftly, saving me the hypocritical assent which was on my lips.

"But there's no use crying over spilt milk," she said with the competent common sense which is hers when she chooses to exercise it. "Of course, that ape couldn't use the sense she wasn't born with and figure out that, if you were in New York, she ought to bring a telegram to me instead of opening it—"

She broke off suddenly with her mouth ludicrously open and put the question I had been dreading.

"But, Margaret, how did you learn of this telegram?"

I took a deep breath and dived off the deep end.

"Katie telephoned me at the hotel in New York and told me about it."

"She dared to make a long distance telephone call without authorization from someone in the house?" she exclaimed. "What did you say to her?"

"I reproved her adequately, I think," I said mendaciously, salving my conscience with the reflection that in Katie's case no rebuke was "adequate." "I am sure she will waken you promptly if ever a similar emergency arises."

"Let us hope she will," my mother-in-law said in what Dicky calls her "best Doubting Thomas manner." Then she rose with sudden briskness from her chair.

"If she had told me at first," she said, "instead of keeping it from me all this time, she would have been able to spread her work over a comfortable time, instead of having to rush and work into the night as she will now. But it will be a much-needed lesson. I hope she will profit by it."

Would Clean House.

My mental thermometer traveled rapidly downward again. Just what was she planning? I made a forlorn attempt to stem the tide.

"I don't think it will take her long to finish her baking," I said. "Was there anything special you wished her to do?"

She fixed me with an accusing stare.

"Don't you realize?" she said, "that this whole house has to be gone over from top to bottom before my grandchildren and Mrs. Bickett arrive?"

I put down the whimsical reflection that not one of the group coming save Katherine would know whether the house was in order or not. The only thing which would interest them was what the boys dubbed "the eats."

"The house looks beautifully clean and in order," I said, trying to stave off the evil hour I saw approaching.

"That's because I see to it that it's kept that way," she retorted. "But that's not saying it's ready for company. You'd better set Katie at the rooms upstairs first. Or if you're tired from your journey, go and lie down and I'll attend to Katie. She'll wish she'd come to me about that telegram by the time she gets through work tonight."

THEATER

"Four Men and a Prayer."

The clouds that the munitions makers cast over modern civilization is the subject of David Garth's novel, "Four Men and a Prayer," which in picture form is the Madison attraction for the first half of the week, starting with a midnight show tonight. A distinguished English officer in India is disgraced through a forged order, and at his death his four sons set out to trace the malignant force behind it. Their search leads to an international munitions ring. The picture serves to introduce Richard Green of the London stage to American film followers. The four brothers are played by Greene, George Sanders, David Niven and William Henry. Loretta Young is the heart interest. Other roles are played by C. Aubrey Smith, Edward Bromberg, Edward Carradine, Alan Hale and Reginald Denny.

* * *

"Robin Hood" at Ohio.

If you've ever wondered what makes the cost of motion pictures so high, you might concentrate on the duel in "Adventures of Robin Hood," which opens today at the Ohio. It takes a little less than five minutes to show it on the screen—but it took six days of continuous work to make the scene. And in all probability Errol Flynn and Basil Rathbone, who fight it, never worked harder. They heaved and clashed broadswords all over the big Warner Brothers set, under high powered lights, with cameramen, technicians, directors, sound men and stage hands working in the background. The picture is a new weaving together of old legends about the most romantic rascal in history, Robin Hood, whose name is synonymous with stealing from the rich and giving to the poor. Olivia deHavilland is seen as Maid Marian, while the remainder of the cast is made up of famous character players.

* * *

"Nurse From Brooklyn."

Taken from the Liberty magazine story, "If You Break My Heart," the Majestic presents as one of its two features for Sunday and Monday, "Nurse From Brooklyn" with Sally Eilers and Paul Kelley. This is the story of a girl who set out to avenge her brother's death, but was forestalled by love. Miss Eilers is a nurse who believes that the policeman on the waterfront beat killed her brother to earn promotion. The police officer happens to be young and attractive, which complicates her intentions. The second subject is "This Marriage Business," with Victor Moore, Allan Lane and Vicki Lester.

* * *

"The Buccaneer."

Cecil B. DeMille's spectacular drama of Jean LaFitte, last of the great American pirates, who had a thousand crimes to his credit and one glorious deed, will be presented at the Ritz Sunday and Monday. The picture doesn't try to cover the whole life of LaFitte, but only the events that led to his part in America's victory over England at the battle of New Orleans. Frederic March, ideally suited to the role of the swashbuckling pirate, and little Franciska Gaal, who made a tremendous hit in her first American picture, head a cast that is made up of well known names. A deeply moving love story runs parallel with the historical events.

Problems of Taste Topics For Today

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: In our small high school it has never been customary for the graduates to wear gowns. Will you tell us what you think is prettiest for the girls in the class to wear on this occasion, and do you still think that dark suits are best for the boys.

Answer: I think dark blue suits are much the best for the boys, and I think white dresses are much the prettiest for the girls. Moreover, I think it is also important to the effect of the picture that the girls decide to wear dresses that are more or less alike in texture and type, and that they all wear white shoes and the same color stockings. By having dresses more or less the same I do not mean as alike as those worn by the bridesmaids in a wedding; but merely that either they should all be white tailor-made dresses of every-day length or else white ankle-length party dresses.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband has inherited a very valuable diamond ring from an uncle, but he feels that this will be too conspicuous to wear. The stones are very large, and my husband very conservative. Do men of taste wear such rings or do they only wear dark stones or signet rings?

Answer: Men of really conservative taste do not like diamonds unless they are sunk in a gypsy hook; so that the setting is very large and the edge of the stones buried in the gold. But large diamonds plainly displayed would not be in good taste. It is also important to note that men of best taste wear their rings on their little fingers, never on their third.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Please, please, please do something about the people who blaze a trail of lipstick after them wherever they go. On the hostess' beautiful damask linen napkins, on her best guest towels, and even on the lace scarf on the dressing table. Some of it is so indelible that nothing short of throwing these pieces of linen away will rid the house of the stains. And what is more nauseating than picking up an apparently clean and beautifully laundered towel to find that it has streaks of washed-in-red?

Answer: Not that I hold any brief for the behavior of the person who wipes red all over towels and napkins, but at the same time I think there must be some fault in your laundry. I myself have never had any of my towels or napkins come back from the wash with streaks on them. This, in spite of the fact that some of my napkins are french blue, which, being one of the most fadable colors, could never survive a strong bleach of any kind. Therefore, I imagine plenty of soap and a little patient rubbing is all that is necessary.

To remove mustard stains from table linen, boil linen in water in which one teaspoon of washing soda to each quart of water has been dissolved.

SAYS BRISBANE GAVE GENIUS TO BIG BUSINESS

Author's Candid Biography of Noted Columnist Among Library Additions.

Arthur Brisbane, one-time highest paid journalist in the world, is the subject of a new biography which is on the list of non-fiction additions at the Public library this week.

"Brisbane: A Candid Biography," just published, is written by Oliver Carlson, the author of "Hearst: Lord of San Simeon." Being all that the title implies, the author analyzes the character and writings of the man who was a power in the Hearst publications. Carlson says Brisbane "dedicated his genuius to the ends and purposes of big business."

"The Book of Natural Wonders" by Ellison Hawks undertakes to show how the ceaseless activity of nature continues through the ages, and gives interesting information about the interior of the earth, the fossils, high mountains, earthquakes, volcanoes, geysers and disappearing islands.

A good book for everyone who is inclined to worry is "In the Name of Common Sense" by Dr. Matthew M. Chappell. It is based on robust common sense and scientific accuracy, and his method of getting rid of the worry habit is simple and concrete.

Other Non-Fiction.

Also on the non-fiction list is: "Oxford Limited" by Briant; "Advancing America: The Drama of Transportation and Communication," Denison; "Nature of Physical Theory," Bridgman; "History of Biology," Nordenskiold; "Story of Medicine," Robinson; "Romance of Russian Medicine," Ravitch; "How to Sell in Chain Stores," Barton; "Advertising and Its Mechanical Production," Greer; "Diplomacy of Imperialism" by Langer (2 vol.); and "Invasion of China by the Western World" by Hughes.

Marjorie Kinan Rawlings' new work, "The Yearling" is laid in inland Florida as was her other book, "South Moon Under." The volume, which is among the new fiction at the library, is an interesting story of a hammock-country family, the Baxters, during one year of its life.

"Hall of Mirrors" by Lenore G. Marshall is a thoughtful treatment of the theme that human beings undergo a mental struggle before bringing themselves to face the inevitable. Margaret Clay, a young matron, is threatened with blindness, while her husband must choose between holding his position as editor of a large newspaper and maintaining his integrity.

In the novel, "At Last the Island," by Margaret Lane, an autocratic French novelist succumbs to the lure of the Mediterranean and moves to a tiny island with his family and a few friends. The obstacles which arise from emotional complications provide a highly original plot.

Other fictioin this week includes a mystery novel, "Cabana Murders," by Dane: another Mary Roberts Rinehart story about the redoubtable Tish—"Tish Marches On;" "Star Rising" by Kelland; and "Madame Flowery Sentiment" by Gervais.

CHAPTER XI

"I'd rather get this out of my system, once and for all," Clay interrupted evenly. "I offered to get out before I started to work. I'm sorry I didn't. If you're going to hold me to the letter of our contract please consider that another twenty-nine days cleans me up. I'll be of any assistance I can in the meanwhile, but don't expect me to display any initiative."

"You are an amazing young fool, sir! You have no blood claim to my interest, yet I take the trouble to hunt you up and offer you the opportunity of a lifetime. If you had chosen to tend to business, my way, you'd have found yourself sole owner of the mill when I'm through with it. There are no stockholders. It's all mine. You'd have had a comfortable fortune by the time you were my age. But you'd throw all that away with the snap of your fingers, all for some high-flown notion . . . chivalry, I suppose. A chit of a working girl who never has had anything and never will."

"You can leave Miss Layne out of the matter. She is dispensed with, so far as you are concerned. I will see her as soon as I can and express my . . . mortification, I suppose. Fortunately, she will have no reason to believe that I had anything to do with it. There are no amends that I can make, of course. I shall tell her that I am leaving your employ also."

"Don't offer my apologies to the lady," was the sneering retort. "See here, Clayton. You're young. I'll agree to overlook what you have said this evening. I'm ready to give you a free hand from now on. You owe something to me."

"And I owe something to my self-respect. More than to you. I'm sorry it turned out this way, but I have made up my mind."

* * *

There was a moment's silence in the darkening room. It was broken by Romulus. Clay was startled by the change in his voice. It was dull, low.

"You can't go away, Clayton. You can't leave your work like this. You can't leave the mill, I tell you."

"Why do you say that?" Clay's anger had left him.

"Because I've been making plans for a long time. I've been making plans . . ." His voice trailed away.

Clayton bent in sudden alarm, peered closely at his uncle. He saw him fumbling at his collar with one hand, caught the sound of his labored breathing.

"Uncle Romulus!" he exclaimed. "What is it? Are you ill?"

"No, no!" Wardlaw tried to infuse the old harshness into his voice, but it was a failure.

Clay reached out and snapped the switch of a lamp that stood on the table beside his uncle's chair. The little man's face was white and drawn. Drops of perspiration stood out on his high forehead.

"I'm all right," he insisted querulously. "Now."

"I'm afraid you're not," Clay persisted, feeling remorseful in spite of himself. "I'm sorry. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Yes. Sit down there and wait a minute."

* * *

Clay relaxed in his chair and watched the other man doubtfully. Romulus was leaning back with his eyes closed, the fingers of one hand toying restlessly with the handle of his cane. He looked suddenly weak, helpless.

"Now!" Wardlaw said it suddenly and opened his eyes. "We'll talk. It's been a good many years, Clayton, since I've asked a favor of any man. I asked one of your father and he turned me down. I swore I never would again . . . that I'd make folks ask favors of me. Now, I'm forced to ask one of you. I'll tell you freely that I'm asking it only because I have to. I'm going to ask you . . . not to leave me."

Clay revolved the matter in his mind a moment before he answered.

"I'm afraid I shall have to know your reasons. Does it . . . is it concerned in any way with my father?"

"No, no! That was years ago. It concerns only me—and you. I had a sort of spell some months ago . . . nothing serious. But I went to see a doctor in the city. He said my machinery was showing signs of wear and that I ought to slow up a little. I feel as well as I ever did, almost as well. But it got me to thinking. I hadn't anybody to carry on for me. But when you've spent the best part of a lifetime building something it . . . it gets into your blood. You hate the idea of seeing it fall into ruins or being run by somebody that doesn't care or know what you put into it. You're too young to know."

"Perhaps I'm not," Clay remarked thoughtfully. He wondered if the old gentleman was displaying a soft side, or if it was a species of fright . . . a growing knowledge that he couldn't proceed in his narrow ruthless path forever. That would be about the only thing that would drive him to ask a favor of anybody. If he only had gotten around to that state of mind twenty-four hours sooner, it would have been better for all concerned.

"I wanted a pair of younger shoulders to unload some of my work on," Romulus continued. "I hunted you up. They told me you were ambitious and a hard worker. I've watched you since you've been here. You can do the job the way I want it done. I know you can and . . . well, I don't want anybody else."

"That's very kind of you Uncle. It's merely too bad that we don't see more nearly alike in some matters. I would be glad to accede to your request, if I could. But I think you'd best find somebody else. Your office force, now, would have as poor an opinion of me as I would myself."

"Don't worry about their opinions. They have only the opinions I want them to have."

"There's where you make a mistake. They are entitled to their own ideas. The same as I."

"Don't go away and leave me, Clayton." There was a haggard note in his voice. "Think it over. Be reasonable."

"Frankly, I don't see how it's possible. We've run into this . . . we'll run into something else later. Our ideas don't seem to fit."

"Nonsense. Just you settle down to business for a time. And nothing else. It'll pay you handsomely."

* * *

Clay shook his head. He was thinking of Larry. Who was going to make all this up to her? Romulus, watching him eagerly, seemed to read what was in his nephew's mind.

"See here, Clayton. I'm not used to backing down. It doesn't come easy, but I'll do it this once. I'll send word to that girl to come in tomorrow. If it's going to make all the difference you think, why go through with your idea of having her help you. I don't like it, but I guess I can stand it."

"And you think she would be willing to come back?"

"And why not? Jobs aren't easy to find here. Tell her we might pay her a little more . . . later of course."

"Unless I am exceedingly mistaken, Miss Layne will tell me to go to the devil. And take you with me." Clay's lips curled a trifle, as he added: "I'll be greatly disappointed if she doesn't."

"Bosh! She'll jump at the chance. But she mustn't get it into her light head that it's anything but strictly business from now on."

Clay got to his feet.

"Very well, I'll deliver your message. It will put a little better face on the trip . . . to let her know that you have reconsidered. I'll see you in the morning."

Five minutes later, his roadster was going down t he hill toward town at reckless speed. It was very nearly dark when he reached the block where the Layne house stood.

Larry sprang to her feet at her brother's teasing announcement that Wilbur Grant was calling.

"Listen!" she cautioned her family hurriedly. "I'm pretty sure that no one in the office knows why . . . about the new job I was supposed to have. I want them to think that Rommy fired me on general principles. He does that often enough. I don't want to talk about it, with Wilbur or anybody else."

"You'll have to see him," Mrs. Layne insisted. "Griff says he knows what happened. He just wants to tell you he's sorry, I expect. And he is a nice boy."

"All right. I'll go to the door myself and show him my Spartan stuff. If I entertain him on the porch, he may not stay so long."

* * *

With a sigh, she went to answer a modest tapping on the screen door.

"Hello, Wilbur," was her quiet greeting. "Been pretty hot today, hasn't it? What do you say we sit out here? It's cooler than inside."

Wilbur agreed, but without any display of enthusiasm. He was a short young man, inclined to be portly, and his brown hair was noticeably thin in spite of his efforts to comb it to the best advantage. His round face was in a state of perpetual calm and gave one the impression that he was addicted to serious thinking always.

Larry had rather resented his evident attentions the past year, but Wilbur was one of those kindly, steadfast friends whose feelings you never hurt if you could help it. He was too nice. And if he had been able to drop his air of dignity a little oftener, he would have been much nicer.

This evening, feeling that his friendship warranted it, he spoke almost at once of Larry's misfortune.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Dr. Edward Kasner, professor of mathematics at Columbia University, likes to go walking.

That is how he discovered the googol. A googol is a number—one followed by one hundred zeros.

He was walking with his nephew, talking about names for mathematical symbols. Dr. Kasner is famous for inventing new names in mathematics. He asked the boy to suggest an amusing name.

"Googol," said the nephew.

Dr. Kasner thereupon invented a place in mathematics for this queer name. The one followed by 100 zeros is the number just larger than anything used by astronomers or physicists. That is, it's bigger than anything conceived in a practical way by man.

The biggest previous practical number has been the count of the particles forming the universe. Assuming that each is as small as an invisible electron, that number is one followed by 79 zeros.

This limit of matter is set by Einstein's discoveries in relativity. If mathematicians discover there can be more matter than this, they can write it quickly as a googol.

Tells of Boston Girl's Marriage to Colored Fiance

BOSTON —(AP)— The marriage of Miss Mary Bradley Dawes, young member of an old New England family, and Julian De Negal Steele, colored, former director of the Robert Gould Shaw house, a Boston philanthropic institution, has been announced at the office of Steele's attorney.

The marriage was the culmination of an engagement of longstanding which had its origin at the time Miss Dawes was a social worker at the Shaw house settlement several years ago. Steele held the office of "chief colored social worker" at the institution. He is a graduate of Harvard university.

Steele's resignation from his position at the Robert Gould Shaw house was accepted by the trustees in March.

Ohio Plans Roads 44 Feet Wide For Safety In Traffic

COLUMBUS — (NS) — Future highway construction in Ohio will be undertaken with an eye towards the latest developments in safety, State Highway Director John J. Jaster, jr., declared.

"Many of the highways to be constructed under the 1938-39 road program will be situated so that additions may be made as conditions demand," Jaster pointed out.

He said that highways on the main line of traffic will first be made the standard 22 feet width but enough room will be left on one side so 22 additional feet can be added to make a divided road.

Bisected by lawns or concrete structures, the divided highways are extremely popular in New Jersey and Rhode Island, Jaster said.

Elimination of opposite bound traffic using the same lane provides for greater safety and speeds up movement of the cars.

Within the next several months work will be started on three or four divided highways and if they prove successful will be the common rather than the unusual thing in Ohio.

Farmingdale Takes Bombardment Lightly

While the lights of Farmingdale, L. I., were turned out for the first wartime aerial attack drill in America, these townspeople took refuge in the cellar of a beer garden. Not a pinpoint of light showed in the town as the invading aerial bombers of the "Black" forces sought to wipe it out with "bombs."

UTILITY ISSUES CLIMB, STEELS, MOTORS DROP

Senate Group's Action To Bar U. S. Utility Funds Boosts Power Stocks.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Utilities edged forward in today's early stock market proceedings but many other issues slipped fractions to a point or so.

Improvement was shown by consolidated Edison, North American, Public Service of N. J., and Electric Power & Light.

On the downside were Westinghouse, Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Bethlehem and American Smelting.

Power company stocks were bolstered by action of the senate appropriations sub-committee in voting to prohibit use of federal funds for competition with private utilities giving adequate service.

Holders of the oils studied figures of the bureau of mines indicating a daily average supply of 3,333,300 barrels of crude petroleum would be necessary to meet June demand. This would be 15,200 barrels higher than the estimate for May and 5 per cent less than June distribution a year ago.

The youths, against whom no charge had been placed as yet today, told police they had planned the robbery Thursday night, knowing of Hart's plans to buy a car. They divided the money among them. All of it was recovered.

Berlin partners. Strained relations between Italy and France, the weakening of Soviet influence in Europe and international complications arising from the Spanish civil war favored a drastic move by Hitler inasmuch as other powers already have their hands full. But a Czechoslovakian war almost certainly would eventually involve all Europe—and that has not been the Nazi method.

Report Czechs Build Sandbag Barricades.

BUDAPEST — (AP) — Political circles were aroused today by reports sandbag barricades have been thrown up on Czechoslovakia's Pilsen-Eger road, the military gateway to western Czechoslovakia.

Reports received in Hungary indicated disorders were growing in Czechoslovakia as municipal elections neared.

The Hungarian press bannerlined reports of the disturbances and the refusal of the Sudetan German minority to negotiate with the Praha government on outstanding issues.

"We must not permit ourselves to be disunited but must stick together and complete our national unity.

"We are not afraid of the days ahead. We are not afraid at all. We are prepared for everything.

MEET ON RELIEF FUND TRANSFER

City and County Officials To Confer Next Week As Bills Pile Up.

bills were beginning to cause city officials some concern. He explained that an average of 25 calls a day were being made to his office by grocers demanding payment of the accounts that run as high as $2,500 in some cases.

He was joined by Mayor Hunter in the statement that if the transfer of the $50,000 was not authorized by the sinking funds trustees that drastic curtailments would result in city departments.

The first move, Hunter indicated would be to cut the city personnel in half.

"This would include the police, fire, street, sewer and water departments," the mayor said.

"It is estimated that $50,000 will only take care of relief bills until Dec. 31, and the laying off of city employes is the only means of obtaining the necessary amount."

Kelley pointed out that $20,000 already had been set aside in the annual appropriations bill for hospital and medical care of indigents and that $50,000 "would barely" meet relief bills to the end of the year with the present outlook.

"They are the worst I have seen in 15 years in Mansfield," Kelley said.

He explained that no relief bills had been paid since the city took over the administration Mar. 15. Approximately $8,000 has already been received from the state, part of which has been used to meet administrative costs.

It was also pointed out that one out of every 15 persons in Mansfield was on relief and that food allowances per person was one of the lowest in the state. Kelley said the average expenditure for indigent care per person averaged $2.17 per month, which he termed "a miserably small amount."

County Needs Nursing Home For Tuberculosis Cases, Steadily Gaining

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT IS CONSTANTLY being pointed out to Mansfielders that money in large sums is needed for this and that, if their city is to keep up with the march of progress, but one of the most imperative needs goes begging. It is talked of only in a small group of interested persons.

We do need new school buildings; we've got to do something about our streets; it would be fine to have an airport; but——

Mansfield must do something about its increasing number of tuberculosis patients. There is no place for them in Mansfield except at private nursing homes where other kinds of cases are also cared for.

Mansfield needs, more than any other thing, a tuberculosis nursing home, owned by the city or county, and under the supervision of the city-county health department.

* * *

EVEN if public health and humanitarian demands didn't make the need imperative, there is the matter of economy. In 1936 county commissioners paid out $13,552 for the care of 20 Richland county tuberculosis patients in sanitariums and private nursing homes; last year, the number had increased to 39 patients—23 in private homes and 16 in sanitariums—at a cost of $25,343.

This year the commissioners appropriated $15,000 for the care of our tuberculosis victims, but the first three months has used almost $10,000 of that and before the end of the year the figure will run well over $35,000, or possibly $40,000. There are 58 patients now, but other pressing cases were discovered in the last clinic and they must be hospitalized.

* * *

COUNTY commissioners are chewing their fingernails over the increasing burden. Like the health commissioner, they know that a nursing home for these patients would materially reduce the cost, and would provide care for a greater number.

The advanced cases would still need hospital treatment, but the convalescent cases—those in nursing homes now—could be cared for in one supervised home at less cost to the county.

Construction of a nursing home or center isn't a particularly expensive project, and once it became a reality, the cost of maintenance would certainly be under the present cost for convalescent patients.

If a levy for a tuberculosis home appeared on the ballot next fall, would YOU vote for it?

LIVE AND LEARN: We always thought it was Herbert Hoover, who first predicted that grass would grow in the streets of every American city if the Democrats had their way. But it wasn't; William Jennings Bryan used those exact words in the 1895 Democratic convention in Chicago when he was beating the drum for free silver. The only point of similarity was that he, too, was shaking a warning finger at the Democratic party, which seems to have been divided in opinion at that time too, according to Harry Barnard's biography of John Peter Altgeld, Mansfielder.

* * *

THE month of May does a bunny-out-of-a-hat trick by having 15 weeks and two days in it this year, when there should be but four weeks and three days.

There was Child Health week, National Baby week; National Egg week; National Restaurant week; National Foot Health week; National Golf week; National Raisin week; National Maritime week; National Air Mail week; Peace week; Ice Cream week; Potato Chip week; Spark Plug week; Clean-Up week; National Tennis week—not to mention International Goodwill day and Straw Hat day.

Has anyone ever thought of a Back-to-Sanity week?

* * *

THE crowd and the celebration at Mansfield airport Thursday afternoon when the first air mail was flown from Mansfield, may be just another stunt or it may be a significant event in Mansfield progress.

But it was a little discouraging to have it announced that $50,000 had been spent on the airport—and still we have nothing more than a nice green pasture field, with little hills and bumps and ruts and water pools all over it. What do we have to show for $50,000?

Mansfield citizens ARE interested in the progress of their city, but they're getting tired of appropriating money and getting nothing in return.

Before Mansfield appropriates more money for its airport it should be sure that it's going to have an airport when it's finished.

MARTHA RAYE'S studio will follow her demands and try to gild the lily. She wants to be a glamour-girl, despite her low-comedy face, and thinks that her eyes and shapely legs can be made to do the trick. They've even given her Marlene Dietrich's alluring dressing room at the studio.

If Paramount can make a glamour star of a gal who has won fame and fortune on the size of her mouth and her ability to roar "O-o-o-o-oh Boy!" then Hugh Herbert should have no trouble playing Romeo.

Showdown Near in Mexican Military Feud

PEACE APPEALS FUTILE, TROOP CLASHES DENIED

'Forced To Fight' Cedillo Tells Cardenas Emissary At Mountain Retreat.

(By International News Service)

MEXICO CITY — The feud between President Lazaro Cardenas and General Saturnino Cedillo, overlord of the state of San Luis Potosi, apparently neared a showdown today following an unsuccessful attempt by Cardenas to effect a peaceful settlement.

The war department flatly denied, however, that fighting between federal troops and units of Cedillo's peasant army of 15,000 has broken out so far.

Authorities also denied widely published reports that a railway bridge between Cardenas, San Luis Potosi, and Tampico had been dynamited. Heavy rains washed out the bridge, officials insisted.

Minister Leaves.

Amid this tense situation, the British minister, leaving as a result of Mexico's suspension of diplomatic relations with London, departed over the British-owned Mexican railway for Vera Cruz, where he is scheduled to sail for New Orleans, La., later today.

He had planned to entrain for the American border, but changed his mind because of the threatened trouble in San Luis Potosi.

After Cedillo left his retreat at Las Palomas for a hide-out in the mountains, the president sent an emissary to him to plead for a peaceful settlement. This effort apparently produced no results, however, since Cedillo declared he was being "forced to fight."

Cedillo was reported surrounded by members of his peasant army. Cardenas, himself, directed mobilization of 18,000 troops in San Luis Potosi and adjoining states in preparation for any emergency.

At the same time, planes of the Mexican air force dropped leaflets over San Luis Potosi villages, urging the "campesinos" to surrender their arms

Mrs. Laura Wise of Butler challenges the statement that the air mail letter which left Mansfield airport Thursday, addressed to Norfolk Island in the Pacific, started on the longest journey. In the same mail she sent one to her sister, Mrs. Enoch Grubb, a missionary, who is in Tibet, China. The postage was 76 cents and it ordinarily takes three months for a letter to be delivered. Another long distance letter in the same air mail was one sent by Mrs. Myrtle Kirkpatrick of Butler, to her son, also a missionary, who is on the coast of East Africa.

Mrs. Walter McGee, who lives at the Possum Run club house, didn't know what she was getting into when she put up her barometer on the club house porch. She merely intended to use the weather forecaster to tell when to water the greens and when not to because of approaching rains. But the rain indicator worked so well and so dependably that now club members call her to find out when to do the family washing or when not to start on a trip. She has about a dozen calls a day asking if the rain is to continue or if it will clear up.

HOUSE LABOR CHAIRMAN TO FIGHT CHANGE

Move To Exempt Agriculture Processing From Bill Draws Fire From Mrs. Norton.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Aroused by a drive to exempt processing of all agricultural products from the wage provisions of the wage-hour bill, Chairman Mary T. Norton (D) of the house labor committee, today announced that she will fight all exemptions.

With the measure, which would set an immediate 25-cent minimum hourly wage and a maximum 44-hour work week for interstate industries, scheduled to be called up in the house on Monday, its passage was generally conceded.

Acts For Grange.

The amendment which drew the fire of Mrs. Norton is being proposed by Rep. Coffee (D) of Nebraska, on behalf of the National Grange and other farm organizations. It was written into the ill-fated wage-hour bill in the special session.

Under the amendment, industries engaged in producing, processing, distributing or handling of dairy products, poultry, livestock or other agricultural products of seasonal or perishable nature, would be exempt from the maximum hour provisions.

"The amendment is too far-reaching," said Mrs. Norton. "Why, it would even extend to the soy beans used by Henry Ford in the manufacture of automobiles and to cotton used in making tires. It strikes at the heart of the bill."

Leaders in the battle for the legislation set passage by Tuesday night as their goal. They want to hasten the bill to the senate to avoid side-tracking in a rush for adjournment.

"I am confident that the senate is just as anxious for wage-hours legislation as the house and that the bill will become law," said Mrs. Norton.

White House Satisfied.

The White House, it was said, is satisfied with the house bill even though the administration in the past has favored a flexible wage-hour bill. The Norton bill provides for a progressive increase in the wage to 40 cents an hour after three years and cuts the work-week to 40 hours after two years, with no differentials.

Chairman John J. O'Connor (D) of New York, of the rules committee, predicted 272 votes for the Norton bill while Mrs. Norton said that "we will have a margin of 30 to 40 votes."

SENIORS' BURLESQUE OF JURY TRIAL WINS APPLAUSE OF 1,000

By ROBERT FLOHR

"Ladies of the Jury," a burlesque of a jury trial, was ably presented by 22 members of the June graduating class of Senior high school, last night in the high school auditorium before an audience of nearly 1,000.

Although the play ran more than two hours and a half, the cast held the attention of its audience until the final curtain.

Eight of the seniors were outstanding in their portrayals. Heading the group was Helen Sternbaum, cast in the lead feminine role of Mrs. Livingston Baldwin Crane, a flighty society woman, who through trickery and kind words and deeds, persuaded a jury of 12 men and women to return a verdict of not guilty against the defendant, Mrs. Gordon, played by Willa Hollingshead, after the jurors took 124 ballots.

Harold Loesch, in the male lead of Jay J. Pressley, the dignified jury foreman, took a stellar role and was the last of the jury to change his vote from guilty to not guilty, and to fall under the scheming of Mrs. Crane.

Also outsanding in their parts were Robert Rhoads as Steve Bromm, a World war veteran; Grace Honse as Mayme Mixter, a hard-boiled chorus girl; James McCormich as Art Dobbs, officer of the jury room; Esther Jenkins as Lily Pratt, a sharp-tongued spinster; Albert Allen as Tony Theodolphulus, a breezy young Greek, and Robert McAninch, as Andrew MacKaig, an amusing Scotch gardener.

Others in the play were James Stough, as the attorney for the defense; Robert Straub, attorney for prosecution; Robert Tobias, Leonard Oakes, Alice Mathews, Martha Moore, Edward Maxwell, Bette Green, June Devore, Marjorie Restle, Charlotte Gray, Trueman Reed, and William Dow.

Most of the action of the play took place in the jury room, and showed the various means Mrs. Crane used in getting the jurors to vote in favor of the defendant instead of the way they thought they should.

The play was directed by E. L. Heasley, dramatic instructor at the school. Other members of the production staff were Martha Moore and Bette Greene, business managers; Frances Hanson, advertising manager; Marjorie Fonkalsrud, prompter; Wanda Emmer, Elaine Downs, Al Baerren and Richard Grafmiller, property committee.

Ushers were Vivian Smeltzer, Betty Uhlich, Patricia Anderson, Bettie Houlette, Mary Wentz, Marjorie Ewing, Maureen Bergstrom, Louise Schuler, Byrdella McFerren and Helen Shepherd. Robert Tawse was stage manager and John Mecklem, electrician.

Music was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of S. K. Jorgenson, instructor of instrumental music in the public schools.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Law Cummings Found Is 68 Years Old and It Still Has Plenty Teeth

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—That is indeed a beautiful and well-preserved antique, that law under which Homer Cummings is investigating the conduct of the Hague organization in Jersey City.

It is sixty-eight years old and was originally intended to protect the newly emancipated Negroes of the South about the time that Homer was born. By the New Deal standard Homer is only two years short of the age when it will become necessary to turn him out to grass on the grounds of drooling senility, but this law still has all its original teeth. It is now being used against the Harlan county mine operators, but that case is still before the courts.

More important as demonstrating the effectiveness of this law are the Kansas City election fraud prosecutions, many of which have been completed. In those cases the law snapped at a large number of tough citizens and tore living hunks out of them. It's alive, all right.

It says that if two or more persons shall conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right guaranteed by the constitution they shall be fined not more than $5,000, serve a year in jail and be barred from certain public offices.

* * *

There is an awful spread of law in those few words, and I am a little surprised to read that Mayor Frank Hague's opponents in the Jersey City suppression thing are jubilant over its revival, because obviously the same sort of prosecution could be brought against unioneers over on the left wing for conspiring to injure oppress, threaten and intimidate non-union or non-striking workmen and employers.

Conspiracy to injure, oppress threaten and intimidate is standard practice in some unions and is widely regarded as a legal weapon in the class struggle. But those who think so probably didn't know about this law and even now, knowing it, may not have paused in their jubilation over the Hague thing, the Harlan thing and the Kansas City thing if they knew about it to consider that it might be used with equal vigor and effect against them.

Suppose you have a union meeting in which some fire-eater gets up and yells that they will place one of those living walls around the struck plant and that anyone who attempts to go through the line to his work will think he is going through a concrete mixer. So then they vote strike, and the men who refused to join the union find themselves hampered in the free employment of rights guaranteed by the constitution.

Certainly it should not be difficult to prove conspiracy in cases where leaders organize groups to injure oppress threaten and intimidate individual workmen and employers, leaving only a question whether the conspiracy impaired their enjoyment of their constitutional rights. That would be one for the book to prosecute and convict conspirators under the very law which they invoked against Hague for doing the same to them.

County Needs Nursing Home For Tuberculosis Cases, Steadily Gaining

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT IS CONSTANTLY being pointed out to Mansfielders that money in large sums is needed for this and that, if their city is to keep up with the march of progress, but one of the most imperative needs goes begging. It is talked of only in a small group of interested persons.

We do need new school buildings; we've got to do something about our streets; it would be fine to have an airport; but——

Mansfield must do something about its increasing number of tuberculosis patients. There is no place for them in Mansfield except at private nursing homes where other kinds of cases are also cared for.

Mansfield needs, more than any other thing, a tuberculosis nursing home, owned by the city or county, and under the supervision of the city-county health department.

* * *

EVEN if public health and humanitarian demands didn't make the need imperative, there is the matter of economy. In 1936 county commissioners paid out $13,352 for the care of 20 Richland county tuberculosis patients in sanitariums and private nursing homes; last year, the number had increased to 39 patients—23 in private homes and 16 in sanitariums—at a cost of $25,343.

This year the commissioners appropriated $15,000 for the care of our tuberculosis victims, but the first three months has used almost $10,000 of that and before the end of the year the figure will run well over $35,000, or possibly $40,000. There are 58 patients now, but other pressing cases were discovered in the last clinic and they must be hospitalized.

* * *

COUNTY commissioners are chewing their fingernails over the increasing burden. Like the health commissioner, they know that a nursing home for these patients would materially reduce the cost, and would provide care for a greater number.

The advanced cases would still need hospital treatment, but the convalescent cases—those in nursing homes now—could be cared for in one supervised home at less cost to the county.

Construction of a nursing home or center isn't a particularly expensive project, and once it became a reality, the cost of maintenance would certainly be under the present cost for convalescent patients.

If a levy for a tuberculosis home appeared on the ballot next fall, would YOU vote for it?

* * *

LIVE AND LEARN: We always thought it was Herbert Hoover, who first predicted that grass would grow in the streets of every American city if the Democrats had their way. But it wasn't; William Jennings Bryan used those exact words in the 1895 Democratic convention in Chicago when he was beating the drum for free silver. The only point of similarity was that he, too, was shaking a warning finger at the Democratic party, which seems to have been divided in opinion at that time too, according to Harry Barnard's biography of John Peter Altgeld, Mansfielder.

* * *

THE month of May does a bunny-out-of-a-hat trick by having 15 weeks and two days in it this year, when there should be but four weeks and three days.

There was Child Health week, National Baby week; National Egg week; National Restaurant week; National Foot Health week; National Golf week; National Raisin week; National Maritime week; National Air Mail week; Peace week; Ice Cream week; Potato Chip week; Spark Plug week; Clean-Up week; National Tennis week—not to mention International Goodwill day and Straw Hat day.

Has anyone ever thought of a Back-to-Sanity week?

* * *

THE crowd and the celebration at Mansfield airport Thursday afternoon when the first air mail was flown from Mansfield, may be just another stunt or it may be a significant event in Mansfield progress.

But it was a little discouraging to have it announced that $50,000 had been spent on the airport—and still we have nothing more than a nice green pasture field, with little hills and bumps and ruts and water pools all over it. What do we have to show for $50,000?

Mansfield citizens ARE interested in the progress of their city, but they're getting tired of appropriating money and getting nothing in return.

Before Mansfield appropriates more money for its airport it should be sure that it's going to have an airport when it's finished.

MARTHA RAYE'S studio will follow her demands and try to gild the lily. She wants to be a glamour-girl, despite her low-comedy face, and thinks that her eyes and shapely legs can be made to do the trick. They've even given her Marlene Dietrich's alluring dressing room at the studio.

If Paramount can make a glamour star of a gal who has won fame and fortune on the size of her mouth and her ability to roar "O-o-o-o-oh Boy!" then Hugh Herbert should have no trouble playing Romeo.

Showdown Near in Mexican Military Feud

PEACE APPEALS FUTILE, TROOP CLASHES DENIED

'Forced To Fight' Cedillo Tells Cardenas Emissary At Mountain Retreat.

(By International News Service)

MEXICO CITY — The feud between President Lazaro Cardenas and General Saturnino Cedillo, overlord of the state of San Luis Potosi, apparently neared a showdown today following an unsuccessful attempt by Cardenas to effect a peaceful settlement.

The war department flatly denied, however, that fighting between federal troops and units of Cedillo's peasant army of 15,000 has broken out so far.

Authorities also denied widely published reports that a railway bridge between Cardenas, San Luis Potosi, and Tampico had been dynamited. Heavy rains washed out the bridge, officials insisted.

Minister Leaves.

Amid this tense situation, the British minister, leaving as a result of Mexico's suspension of diplomatic relations with London, departed over the British-owned Mexican railway for Vera Cruz, where he is scheduled to sail for New Orleans, La., later today.

He had planned to entrain for the American border, but changed his mind because of the threatened trouble in San Luis Potosi.

After Cedillo left his retreat at Las Palomas for a hide-out in the mountains, the president sent an emissary to him to plead for a peaceful settlement. This effort apparently produced no results, however, since Cedillo declared he was being "forced to fight."

Cedillo was reported surrounded by members of his peasant army. Cardenas, himself, directed mobilization of 18,000 troops in San Luis Potosi and adjoining states in preparation for any emergency.

At the same time, planes of the Mexican air force dropped leaflets over San Luis Potosi villages, urging the "campesinos" to surrender their arms.

Mrs. Laura Wise of Butler challenges the statement that the air mail letter which left Mansfield airport Thursday, addressed to Norfolk Island in the Pacific, started on the longest journey. In the same mail she sent one to her sister, Mrs. Enoch Grubb, a missionary, who is in Tibet, China. The postage was 76 cents and it ordinarily takes three months for a letter to be delivered. Another long distance letter in the same air mail was one sent by Mrs. Myrtle Kirkpatrick of Butler, to her son, also a missionary, who is on the coast of East Africa.

Mrs. Walter McGee, who lives at the Possum Run club house, didn't know what she was getting into when she put up her barometer on the club house porch. She merely intended to use the weather forecaster to tell when to water the greens and when not to because of approaching rains. But the rain indicator worked so well and so dependably that now club members call her to find out when to do the family washing or when not to start on a trip. She has about a dozen calls a day asking if the rain is to continue or if it will clear up.

HOUSE LABOR CHAIRMAN TO FIGHT CHANGE

Move To Exempt Agriculture Processing From Bill Draws Fire From Mrs. Norton.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Aroused by a drive to exempt processing of all agricultural products from the wage provisions of the wage-hour bill, Chairman Mary T. Norton (D) of the house labor committee, today announced that she will fight all exemptions.

With the measure, which would set an immediate 25-cent minimum hourly wage and a maximum 44-hour work week for interstate industries, scheduled to be called up in the house on Monday, its passage was generally conceded.

Acts For Grange.

The amendment which drew the fire of Mrs. Norton is being proposed by Rep. Coffee (D) of Nebraska, on behalf of the National Grange and other farm organizations. It was written into the ill-fated wage-hour bill in the special session.

Under the amendment, industries engaged in producing, processing, distributing or handling of dairy products, poultry, livestock or other agricultural products of seasonal or perishable nature, would be exempt from the maximum hour provisions.

"The amendment is too far-reaching," said Mrs. Norton. "Why, it would even extend to the soy beans used by Henry Ford in the manufacture of automobiles and to cotton used in making tires. It strikes at the heart of the bill."

Leaders in the battle for the legislation set passage by Tuesday night as their goal. They want to hasten the bill to the senate to avoid side-tracking in a rush for adjournment.

"I am confident that the senate is just as anxious for wage-hours legislation as the house and that the bill will become law," said Mrs. Norton.

White House Satisfied.

The White House, it was said, is satisfied with the house bill even though the administration in the past has favored a flexible wage-hour bill. The Norton bill provides for a progressive increase in the wage to 40 cents an hour after three years and cuts the work-week to 40 hours after two years, with no differentials.

Chairman John J. O'Connor (D) of New York, of the rules committee, predicted 272 votes for the Norton bill while Mrs. Norton said that "we will have a margin of 30 to 40 votes."

MARTIN LEADS OREGON RACE

Hess, Favored By New Deal, Trails In Gubernatorial Primary Contest.

BULLETIN

PORTLAND, Ore. — (U.P.) — Henry L. Hess, running with national administration support, took a lead of 1,091 votes over Gov. Charles H. Martin today in their race for the gubernatorial nomination.

(By United Press)

PORTLAND, Ore. —(U.P.)— Gov. Charles H. Martin, backed by upstate returns, gained a slight lead today over his administration-favored opponent, Henry L. Hess in the race for Democratic nomination for governor.

Complete and incomplete returns from 1,181 precincts of the state's 1,681 gave:

Martin 31,098

Hess 30,211

Beaten in Multnomah county, which includes Portland, the governor showed strength in outlying districts and as tabulations progressed he cut into Hess' early lead.

The returns were not conclusive as many large Portland precincts had reported only a few ballots counted.

In the senatorial races, Willis E. Mahoney had a comfortable lead over U. S. Attorney Carl G. Donaugh for the Democratic nomination and Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, apparently had won the Republican nomination over former Senator Robert N. Stanfield.

Returns from 887 precincts in the senatorial race gave:

Mahoney 33,075, Donaugh 17,888, Holman 39,659, Stanfield 15,457.

SENIORS' BURLESQUE OF JURY TRIAL WINS APPLAUSE OF 1,000

By ROBERT FLOHR

"Ladies of the Jury," a burlesque of a jury trial, was ably presented by 22 members of the June graduating class of Senior high school, last night in the high school auditorium before an audience of nearly 1,000.

Although the play ran more than two hours and a half, the cast held the attention of its audience until the final curtain.

Eight of the seniors were outstanding in their portrayals. Heading the group was Helen Sternbaum, cast in the lead feminine role of Mrs. Livingston Baldwin Crane, a flighty society woman, who through trickery and kind words and deeds, persuaded a jury of 12 men and women to return a verdict of not guilty against the defendant, Mrs. Gordon, played by Willa Hollingshead, after the jurors took 124 ballots.

Harold Loesch, in the male lead of Jay J. Pressley, the dignified jury foreman, took a stellar role and was the last of the jury to change his vote from guilty to not guilty, and to fall under the scheming of Mrs. Crane.

Also outsanding in their parts were Robert Rhoads as Steve Bromm, a World war veteran; Grace Honse as Mayme Mixter, a hard-boiled chorus girl; James McCormich as Art Dobbs, officer of the jury room; Esther Jenkins as Lily Pratt, a sharp-tongued spinster; Albert Allen as Tony Theodolphulus, a breezy young Greek, and Robert McAninch, as Andrew MacKaig, an amusing Scotch gardener.

Others in the play were James Stough, as the attorney for the defense; Robert Straub, attorney for prosecution; Robert Tobias, Leonard Oakes, Alice Mathews, Martha Moore, Edward Maxwell, Bette Green, June Devore, Marjorie Restle, Charlotte Gray, Trueman Reed, and William Dow.

Most of the action of the play took place in the jury room, and showed the various means Mrs. Crane used in getting the jurors to vote in favor of the defendant instead of the way they thought they should.

The play was directed by E. L. Heasley, dramatic instructor at the school. Other members of the production staff were Martha Moore and Bette Greene, business managers; Frances Hanson, advertising manager; Marjorie Fonkalsrud, prompter; Wanda Emmer, Elaine Downs, Al Baerren and Richard Grafmiller, property committee.

Ushers were Vivian Smeltzer, Betty Uhlich, Patricia Anderson, Bettie Houlette, Mary Wentz, Marjorie Ewing, Maureen Bergstrom, Louise Schuler, Byrdella McFerren and Helen Shepherd. Robert Tawse was stage manager and John Mecklem, electrician.

Music was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of S. K. Jorgenson, instructor of instrumental music in the public schools.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Law Cummings Found Is 68 Years Old and It Still Has Plenty Teeth

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—That is indeed a beautiful and well-preserved antique, that law under which Homer Cummings is investigating the conduct of the Hague organization in Jersey City.

It is sixty-eight years old and was originally intended to protect the newly citizened Negroes of the South about the time that Homer was born. By the New Deal standard Homer is only two years short of the age when it will become necessary to turn him out to grass on the grounds of drooling senility, but this law still has all its original teeth. It is now being used against the Harlan county mine operators, but that case is still before the courts.

More important, as demonstrating the effectiveness of this law are the Kansas City election fraud prosecutions, many of which have been completed. In those cases the law snapped at a large number of tough citizens and tore living hunks out of them. It's alive, all right.

It says that if two or more persons shall conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right guaranteed by the constitution they shall be fined not more than $5,000, serve a year in jail and be barred from certain public offices.

* * *

There is an awful spread of law in those few words, and I am a little surprised to read that Mayor Frank Hague's opponents in the Jersey City suppression thing are jubilant over its revival, because obviously the same sort of prosecution could be brought against unioneers over on the left wing, for conspiring to injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate non-union or non-striking workmen and employers.

Conspiracy to injure, oppress threaten and intimidate is standard practice in some unions and is widely regarded as a legal weapon in the class struggle. But those who think so probably didn't know about this law and even now, knowing it, may not have paused in their jubilation over the Hague thing, the Harlan thing and the Kansas City thing, if they knew about it, to consider that it might be used with equal vigor and effect against them.

Suppose you have a union meeting in which some fire-eater gets up and yells that they will place one of those living walls around the struck plant and that anyone who attempts to go through the line to his work will think he is going through a concrete mixer. So then they vote strike, and the men who refused to join the union find themselves hampered in the free employment of rights guaranteed by the constitution.

Certainly it should not be difficult to prove conspiracy in cases where leaders organize groups to injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate individual workmen and employers, leaving only a question whether the conspiracy impaired their enjoyment of their constitutional rights. That would be fine for the book—to prosecute and convict conspirators under the very law which they invoked against Hague for doing the same to them.

Common Pleas Judge Walter J. Mourgey of Wayne county has been assigned to hear a Muskingum Conservancy district flood easement case scheduled to open Monday morning in Richland county common pleas court.

Judge Mourgey was assigned to the case by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of Ohio Supreme court because of Judge Mourgey's experience with conservancy matters, court officials said.

A special jury will hear arguments in the trial and decide whether the owners of 214 acres of land in Weller township must accept the offer of the conservancy district for their land or are entitled to more compensation.

Carl Oberlin and R. E. Martin of Mansfield and the Mansfield Building and Loan association, holders of title to the property, are defendants in the suit. They refused to accept the conservancy district's appraisal of the land which totaled $3,267.

Pupils to Get 27 Days Vacation In Next School Year

Pupils in Mansfield schools, who are on the brink of a summer vacation, can look forward to five vacations, totaling 27 days, during the next school year.

And there may be another holiday added for good measure, according to the new school calendar for 1938-39, set up by Supt. W. L. Miller.

Only 180 days of school are required by the state department of education, and since the Mansfield schedule has 181, the superintendent said the extra holiday may be added to the calendar at any time, possibly to permit teachers to attend a convention.

As usual, the Christmas holiday, which begins Dec. 24, will be the longest of the year. It will extend two weeks to Jan. 4. Next best, from the pupils' point of view, will be the 10-day Easter vacation, scheduled to begin April 7.

There will be one-day vacations Oct. 28 for the annual teachers' convention at Cleveland; Feb. 22, for Washington's birthday, and May 30 for Memorial day. The Thanksgiving vacation will be four days long, starting Nov. 23.

School will open Sept. 7 and close for the summer on June 8, one day earlier than this year.

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—reckless driving is a sign of subnormal mentality.

Minneapolis has an 8-year-old evangelist who threatens to "put the devil out of business"—such being the optimism of youth.

Now that wheelbarrows and lawnmowers are equipped with rubber tires—the hardships of the pioneers are becoming even more remote memories.

Considering a Later Need.

A LATER need that will probably not be taken into account in drawing plans for the prospective remodeling of Mansfield postoffice is that of providing a flat roof surface about fifty feet square as a landing place for the autogiro that will carry airmail between Mansfield airport and the postoffice.

Just such use was made of an autogiro as a part of Air Mail Week celebration. A small wingless autogiro carried fifty pounds of mail from the municipal airport to the roof of Chicago's main postoffice, a distance of eight miles. Time required was less than ten minutes. By truck the trip requires 45 minutes.

The roof landing was accomplished without difficulty, according to the pilot, who immediately took off for the airport with several sacks of outgoing mail.

Meanwhile, let's get the hard-surfaced runways, the approved beacons, lighting and service equipment installed at Mansfield airport as quickly as practicable.

Chinese Strategy Effective.

THE Japanese invasion of China, which was expected to be just a big parade, seems to be losing force. Resistance grows steadily stronger, as the vast human resources of China are organized and credits and war materials are obtained in more adequate quantity. Lately even the recapture of Peking has been threatened.

The first big victory at Taierhchwang a few weeks ago seemed a lucky accident. Even if that was true, recent events cannot be so interpreted. A tidal wave of patriotism seems to have swept over a country that has not been credited with such a quality for centuries.

Early blunders of strategy have been corrected. Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek and his staff of foreign advisers have adopted a mode of resistance peculiarly suited to the situation. Vast numbers of troops are trained, equipped with small arms and thrown in heavy masses against the enemy's lines at important points.

The invaders are stretched thin with distance, and their supply becomes more difficult. Chinese guerrilla bands are continually cutting the railroads and highways behind them, ambushing reinforcements and capturing their food and ammunition. Thus, while the Japanese are still far better armed and superior in the air, their rash venture becomes steadily more perilous.

Few Motorists Pick Up Hikers.

HITCH-HIKING, that distinctively American institution which had its inception with the advent of the motor age, is gradually being forced out of existence by adverse public opinion, according to recent surveys which show steady decline in the number of motorists who pick up nondescript "thumbers" still encountered along the highways.

While there is an occasional hitch-hiker really deserving the help that might be given by a "lift," it is practically impossible for a passing motorist to distinguish these from habitual chiselers, tramps and actual criminals who resort to the practice of soliciting rides in order to commit robbery, or even murder.

Most motorists in Mansfield and vicinity, regardless of how kind hearted they may be, have reached realization that they are in no way obligated to take the chances involved in picking up hitch-hikers and this city is gaining a reputation as being a poor place from which to beg a ride.

An ordinance prohibiting hitch-hikers from standing in the streets to solicit rides might further discourage the habit and also serve as a safety measure.

Seventeen states already have laws against hitch-hiking, but such laws are difficult to enforce and it will more likely be by public opinion and general custom that this nuisance is finally abated.

Ford's Farm Boys.

HENRY FORD, as usual, has the courage of his convictions. He thinks Americans today are too far from the land—that the remedy is a back-to-the-land movement. So he proceeds to start one.

Free western land is gone, but there is plenty of idle land in almost every section of the country. Some of it lies right around Detroit and Dearborn, Mich., and is owned by Mr. Ford. So he is going to combine an agricultural and youth project.

He will begin with 100 boys of 17 to 20 years, boys not able to go to college, largely the unemployed sons of Ford factory workers. They will be placed on model farms, living in comfortable tents, with warmer lodgings for winter, to raise corn, soy beans and other products—a combination of foodstuffs and raw material for the industrial plastics in which Mr. Ford is greatly interested. If the experimental farms succeed, he will start many more.

It is a fine, useful undertaking, supplementing activities that the federal government and various states have been trying to do for unemployed youth. Mr. Ford, operating on a small scale with his model projects, may do an excellent job, with the boys and his farm-industry experiments.

Headed Toward Bankruptcy.

ACCORDING to Senator Byrd of Virginia, federal expenditures (after deduction of the soldiers' bonus) for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1938, will be $600,000,000 greater than the previous fiscal year. Moreover, annual federal expenditures have doubled and nearly tripled in the last decade. They are currently in the neighborhood of $8,000,000,000—far in excess of revenues even in boom times.

There is only one way to stop this reckless plunge toward bankruptcy and that is to make it possible for private enterprise to operate once again on a profitable basis, thus allowing government to curtail "emergency" spending.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Just about the time the hard-knuckled boys get out their football togs for spring practice, the U. S. supreme court takes over the case to decide whether the game is an integral and essential part of a college education.

It has taken a long time to get the issue to court but, at last, a decision may be made any day now.

Developed in this country more than a half century ago, the game and its tax exemptions tangled with the law only in 1934 when the U. S. collector of internal revenue tried to collect a 10 per cent gate tax on University of Georgia and Georgia Tech games.

Barely had the case hit the supreme court than 11 other states joined in the fight. Knocking a 10 per cent cut out of the annual football income would hit school athletic budgets a stinging lick, especially in those colleges which expect at least one annual game with an attendance of 80,000 to 100,000 and gate receipts of $200,000 or so. For Georgia U. in 1934 the tax amounted to $895, and for Tech $3,914.

* * *

They Go Places.

ALL 12 states united in denying that universities and colleges "inaugurated and continued to carry on inter-collegiate athletics for the purpose of providing entertainment for the general public or with an intention to invade the field of private business."

The government suggested that football money had built some powerfully expensive stadiums, but the colleges retorted:

"The recent development of professional football shows that the private amusement business is rather tending to invade the field formerly reserved for the universities and colleges."

The colleges quoted sports writer Hugh Fullerton of Chicago and Coach Fritz Crisler of Michigan on the importance of football. Lawyers for Georgia U. and Tech cited a study of college graduates to prove a whole series of things about athletes.

They make their way to bigger cities than the common run of students, buy bigger insurance policies, own bigger and better automobiles. They tend to get into salary brackets above $10,000 a year, with football and basketball players outdoing track stars.

When business houses are tempted, they reach for a gridder instead of a grind.

* * *

Enter the Constitution.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT agreed with the colleges that football is an important part of education and thus an essential function of government, but Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson of Houston, Tex., dissented so hotly that the government adopted most of his argument on appeal to the supreme court.

The government contended it was the spectators and not the colleges who paid the taxes and therefore the colleges had no right to withhold the money from the treasury.

Not only is athletics inessential to a college, the government contended, but it isn't even run by the colleges. It pointed out that an athletic association at the Georgia colleges hired the coaches, paid rent on the field and even supplied the schools with money for scholarships with which to canvass the country for desirable football material. The schools didn't scout for scholars, the government suggested.

The colleges contended that the framers of the Constitution left the states free to provide public education as a government function, but the treasury lawyers ironically replied:

"We hazard the statement that the members of the Constitutional Convention would doubt that 22 men playing a game with a ball constituted an essential governmental function.

"And we do not conceive that the sovereign functions of the state of Georgia are in any sense dependent on the success of the (colleges') football teams."

Upper Berths On Way Out.

Announcement by one of the larger railroads that its new streamlined sleeping-cars will have no upper berths forecasts the early disappearance of this type of passenger accommodation.

Few people will be sorry to see it go. The Pullman car has been almost unique in the extent to which in over half a century it has resisted improvement and change, and the upper berth has been probably the most disagreeable feature of the dark ages of American railroading to linger, unwelcome and disliked amid the modernity of a new day in comfortable and speedy transportation.

Increasing popularity of the section and individual bedroom type of accommodation has at last caused the railroads to see the handwriting on the wall.—Columbus Dispatch.

Japan's Plight Affecting Europe

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THE drain on Japan in China is beginning to have an effect in Europe. The Soviet Union has become immeasurably more secure. That is not all: Germany realizes the fact. Thus, Great Britain, always trying to maintain a balance of power in Europe favorable to her own interests, may have its greatest difficulty in preventing Germany from joining her interests with Russia's!

That has been a German dream for two centuries. Great Britain usually has prevented such a union.

Hitler's anti-Communism tirades have been chiefly political. He has tried to turn Europe and Asia against the Soviet Union so as to have a free hand in expanding toward the east. Not that Hitler isn't diametrically opposed to communism or socialism. He is. And the Russians abhor Naziism. But the two nations need each other. It will be recalled that Stalin killed off his army command because it supposedly favored joint military-political action with Germany. And, later, merely a few months ago, Hitler purged the Nazi army command because, presumably it favored joint military-political action with the Soviet Union.

In the end, it will prove logical, in spite of purges.

Furthermore, German industrialists desire to have a Russian outlet—and what a great field it is! And the Nazis require resource supplies from the Soviet Union.

A union of Germany and Russia would be the most formidable in the history of the world.

* * *

BRITAIN'S PUZZLE

Great Britain's Tory leaders have a problem on their hands. They would like to be friendly enough with Germany to prevent her from joining with the Soviet Union; they would like to be friendly enough to give the Nazis their own way to the east. And Hitler dare not move much farther unless he has assurances from Britain—for he remembers 1914, when Britain jumped in and weighted the balance of power against the Germans.

Britain, however, dare not give up the Soviet Union, either. The British Tories have nothing in common with the "radical" governments, but they are eminently practical.

Britain, therefore, will remain as friendly in a practical sense with the Soviet Union to prevent an alliance with Germany.

In the meantime, the Soviet Union is beginning to feel bitter over the desertion of herself and Loyalist Spain by Great Britain, who also dictates to debt-ridden France. Stalin, at an inopportune moment for Britain, might join hands with Hitler—and Hitler may move to the west instead of the east. There is no little fear of this in the Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland.

Then, where would Britain be? In the worst hole since Napoleon's days.

* * *

POLITICAL CHANGES

But it is dangerous to venture political guests.

The trend in England is away from the Tories, toward the Laborites and Socialism.

Japan may go communistic over night. Who knows?

Belgium is strongly socialistic.

Naziism might have reached its peak. Hitler may find himself isolated by socialism, with his own Reich eventually succumbing to it. As for Italy: In spite of the recent fanfare during Hitler's visit to Mussolini, Italy has resumed its role as a partner of Great Britain in controlling the route to Africa. Italy once more is the little brother of the British. It may be sticking its tongue out at Britain, but it is clutching Britain's hand.

Mussolini will not help pull Hitler out of a tight place any more. Hitler has too many intuitions—such as annexing Austria, without forewarning. Mussolini some day may help Britain try to put Hitler into his place.

All might have been different if the Japanese militarists had not decided to swallow China. They will gorge themselves to death.

Do We Only Do Things We Want to Do?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FOUR young men started a debate. Ended in a riot. Crashed into this column, asking for an umpire.

Want the job?

Here's the problem:

"DO WE ONLY DO THE THINGS WE WANT TO DO?"

For example—

A young man sacrifices his own youth, gives up a college career, renounces the girl he loves and devotes himself to the support of his fatherless brothers and sisters. What's the answer?

Is he a saint, or is he simply doing the things he wants to do?

Did he bravely conquer a temptation to be selfish, or did he secretly PREFER that grim sacrifice to joyous self-development?

Then does he, or doesn't he, deserve any credit for his generous deeds?

Another example—

A town is suddenly gripped by a deadly epidemic. A doctor leaves his home and loved ones, isolates himself in the danger zone, labors there, night and day, until he, too, is stricken down.

Is he a hero, or is he simply following out the law of his own nature?

In other words, is he actually being SELFISH?

Are we always selfish—as selfish in our GOOD DEEDS as in our BAD DEEDS?

DO WE ALWAYS DO THE THINGS WE WANT TO DO?

"That's absurd," you say. "Often I do things I don't want to do. Often I am tempted and yet I resist the temptation."

But do you really resist the temptation or do you do the thing you secretly desire to do?

And being what you are, could you have done anything else?

That leads on to another even more exasperating problem—

IS THERE SUCH A THING AS A "FREE WILL"?

Have we the power to choose between good and evil, or must we do what we're shaped to do?

A disturbing question, isn't it? It disturbed those four young men. Two of them, said that we only did that which we wanted to do. Two of them denied that and said we had to struggle between good and evil and deserved a lot of credit when we chose the finer things.

Then the fight was on. Presently, all four of these young men were very, very angry.

You'll be angry, too, if you start to discuss that question. Human beings have been getting angry over such questions since the world began. But that is how and why the human brain has grown.

Our brains grow by asking questions, by thinking about everything in life, even the simplest things, by taking nothing for granted, by doubting and questioning and rebeling and battling to find the truth.

Go on: try to answer that question! See how hard it is to answer! Get mad about it! Discover how little you really know about yourself or anyone else. You'll be surprised! And you'll be humiliated!

BUT SURPRISE AND HUMILIATION ARE THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM.

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

PENNSYLVANIA Democrats rejected CIO's candidates for senatorial and gubernatorial nominations last Tuesday, and chose:

Gov. George H. Earle for U. S. senator.

Charles Alvin Jones for governor.

Both had been endorsed by the party's state committee. CIO and U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey had supported Philadelphia's Mayor S. Davis Wilson, for senator, and Lt. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, for governor. Charles J. Margiotti also ran for governor.

And Pennsylvania Republicans nominated:

Sen. James H. Davis for another term.

Judge Arthur H. James for governor.

Davis defeated State Senator G. Mason Owlett and James beat ex-Gov. Gifford Pinchot. More votes were cast in the Republican than in the Democratic contests.

Among Pennsylvania's congressmen, there were only two casualties in the primary: Rep. Michael J. Stack of Philadelphia was beaten by Francis J. Myers, and Rep. Charles N. Crosby of Meadville lost to Norbert J. Fitzgerald of Erie.

Nominees' Records.

THUMBNAIL biographies of the four outstanding winners follow:

Earle: Former Republican . . . swung over to New Deal six years ago . . . became state's first Democratic governor in four decades.

Jones: Pittsburgh lawyer . . . World war hero . . . backed Al Smith in '32 Democratic convention . . . swung over to Roosevelt.

Davis: Widely known as "Puddler Jim" . . . a former steel mill puddler who became U. S. labor secretary . . . a senator since '30.

James: Superior court judge . . . once an anthracite coal miner . . . served as lieutenant governor of state a decade ago.

Comment Afterwards.

DEMOCRATIC National Chairman Farley had endorsed Earle and Kennedy. He congratulated Earle and Jones afterwards and predicted harmony.

Republican National Chairman Hamilton interpreted the primary as "the handwriting on the wall for the New Deal and all its radical and crack-brain allies."

AFL President Green said it showed "CIO is a political liability."

"Observers were agreed," reported Kirke L. Simpson, Washington writer for the Associated Press, "that the defeat of the CIO-backed Kennedy campaign . . . represented a reverse for the White House tending to offset its triumph in the Florida test of party sentiment. If wavering Democrats in senate or house take the same views it may seriously complicate the president's task of gram through."

At Home

Microphone Shelved.

Both house and senate committee hearings were held this week in Washington on proposals to build a huge government radio station.

Italy and Germany dominate South American ether and "some antidote" is necessary. New York's Representative Celler argued.

Private facilities are available and government control is unnecessary and undemocratic. Mark Ethridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, protested.

No final action was considered likely during this session.

Three weeks ago Norman Thomas went to Jersey City to make a speech. Police put him back on a ferry to New York. He complained that this was kidnaping.

Two weeks ago two congressmen scheduled speeches in Jersey City but didn't keep the date because would-be hecklers arrived early and filled city square. One complained to the president that this was denial of free speech.

Last week Mr. Roosevelt said alleged denial of free speech by Jersey City's Mayor Frank Hague was a local affair.

This week Attorney General Cummings announced an investigation had been started.

The TVA Inquiry.

Congressmen assigned to investigate TVA decided Wednesday to begin by hearing what its ousted chairman and two directors have to say. Ex-Chairman Morgan said the president had "for practical purposes" excluded him from access to TVA records and the committee voted to ask TVA to let him see the records.

Court Backs NLRB.

Declaring strikers were entitled to the protection of the labor law, the supreme court this week upheld an NLRB order that the MacKay Radio & Telegraph company reinstate five men. The company had not taken them back. NLRB had found, because of union activities.

Reinstatement of 5,000 men was ordered by NLRB recently in the Republic Steel case. But this spring NLRB tried to withdraw that order to proceed differently, and the supreme court called on the circuit court at Philadelphia to explain why it has not let NLRB do so.

The supreme court also agreed to review a case challenging the constitutionality of TVA, held that the government need not make a $300,000 tax refund to the estates of Andrew and R. B. Mellon, and invalidated part of an Indiana law levying a gross income tax on sales made outside the state.

'Tyranny' Trial.

Harlan county, in southeastern Kentucky, was described to senate investigators last year as the scene of "tyranny which has no equal in the civilized world." Indictments followed. And in federal court at London, Ky., this week, 66 defendants—coal companies, their executives and law enforcement officers—went on trial for conspiracy to keep miners from organizing.

Bad News

Ship Mystery.

The British freighter Anglo-Australian carried a crew of 39 and two powerful radio sets. She left Wales last March 8 for Vancouver via Panama and was seen six days later off the Azores. Then, on a main trade route, evidently in calm weather and without sending an SOS, the Anglo-Australian vanished.

The British admiralty this week considered a search for her by air and sea as a "matter of urgency."

California Crash.

Twenty-seven minutes after taking off from near Los Angeles, and only 30 miles away, a new $80,000 plane crashed into a mountain Monday. Nine persons aboard it died. Fog hampered searchers and the wreckage was not found until Wednesday.

A commercial liner that left Los Angeles about the same time had flown above the clouds and had no trouble.

Atlanta's Hotel Fire.

Flames spread through a five-story Atlanta, Ga., hotel early Monday morning, in 10 minutes. Phone connections were severed before a clerk could ring to warn guests. And 35 persons died.

Lawyer's Death.

Isaiah Leebove was a lawyer for New York underworld celebrities in the '20's. He previously had been an Oklahoma oil man, and when there was an oil boom in Michigan, he hopped in, formed a big independent company and became prominent in Michigan politics.

Leebove was shot to death last weekend in a Clare, Mich., hotel taproom. Jack Livingston, who had been associated with him both in Oklahoma and Michigan, was held. Police reported Livingston said it was "the only way to settle a long feud." His lawyers indicated an insanity plea would be made.

Writer's Right.

Elisha Waterman, 39, of New York, is a grand nephew of L. E. Waterman, founder of a pen and ink fortune. He married contrary to his rich father's wishes 15 years ago and has made his living since by washing dishes and writing detective stories. The father died this month, leaving Elisha only $100. But, lawyers for the family say, the scribbler now will get the income from a $5,000,000 trust fund established by his great uncle.

Grounds for Dismissal?

A senior at the U. S. Naval academy cut a class to cram for an exam and reported, according to navy accounts, that he had been at the dentist's. Forced to resign from Annapolis for "making a false statement," the exmidshipman listened this week while a senate committee considered a bill to reinstate him.
